The green revolution brought about a much-needed miraculous transformation in the production of food grains in the Indian economy during the 1960s and consequently our granaries presently fallen vulnerable to, has been noted here that out of these 20 global endangered species of flora and fauna are worryingly dwindling to their lower record. The American black beer is conspicuously threatened with extinction along with 22000 species of other varieties. On an average 70 species go to the loss of 200 sq km of forest per day? With 40 million square kilometre of the forest which comes to around 30 percent of the earth’s area, we have only 0.62 hectare of forest available per capita that does not bode well for the sustenance of the countries.

The endangered species of flora and fauna are worryingly dwindling to their lower record. The American black beer is conspicuously threatened with extinction along with 22000 species of other varieties. On an average 70 species go to the loss of 200 sq km of forest per day? With 40 million square kilometre of the forest which comes to around 30 percent of the earth’s area, we have only 0.62 hectare of forest available per capita that does not bode well for the sustenance of the countries.

The earth planet’s 71 percent of surface is covered with water which sums up more than two-thirds of the area of the earth but only 3 percent of the entire global water is fresh drinking water that may be used by the people across the world for various daily uses. It is because of the fact that 96.5 percent of the Earth’s water is contained by the oceans. The worrying fact reveals that as much as two-thirds of the water which we are left with get trapped in glaciers. This leads us to the availability of as less as 1 percent of fresh water for all the routine human activities across the countries and keeping this constraint in view we can easily visualize the seriousness of the water crisis over the globe.

Besides, environmental pollution has wrought havoc upon the ecological balance and natural habitat of the human beings. Air pollution looms horrible as one of the imminent dangers on the humanity. The World Health Organization’s latest report says that out of nine deaths, at least one death is caused due to presence of carcinogens and other poisons in atmosphere. Reports also reveal that more than 3.5 million people die across the world every year due to air pollution. Out of this half of the people die only in China due to heavy smog.

Air pollution is engulfing many other cities; one cannot even breathe rapidly, especially in the post-reformed era of industrialization and modernization. Pollution by the World Health Organization (WHO), a very alarming revelation has come out. The report says that there are 20 worst polluted cities in the world which are just like death traps because the air of these cities contains concentration level of PM 2.5. It is also noted here that out of these 20 global most polluted cities across the world 14 worst are only in India. The report has one more alarm for us - India has more polluted cities vis-a-vis China has.

Wetland areas, metaphorically called as the nurseries of development of human society and seeds of diversity of flora and fauna on the earth, are very fast shrinking. Destruction of these potentially rich areas of the world is a matter of worry because they boost the production of rice over the globe. The importance of wetland can easily be gauged by the fact that it provides shelter for up to 10 percent of the human population to various kinds of industries, transportation, and various others?

Global warming is another environmental issue which has been haunting the earth planet as another one of the biggest threats. As per an estimate, the global temperature has increased by more than 0.80 C since the latter half of the nineteenth century and consequently adverse trends in the rainfall, droughts and snow patterns are being witnessed across the globe. India being a landlocked nation is likely to rise by 3° to 6°. The main reason of global warming is the fast depletion of Ozone layer. This is an omen trend which we must stay beware of.

The air - pollution-related deaths have also been on the rise in the century. The Global Burden of Diseases says that air pollution-related deaths are causing up to 1.65 million deaths every year. Respiratory and cardiovascular diseases are the topmost reasons for the air-pollution induced premature deaths in majority of the countries in the world. The scarcity of fossil fuels is another danger zone which calls for urgent attention.

The environmental crisis, in fact, is the consciousness crisis. It, is also an awareness crisis and, most importantly, it is the crisis of our inability of visualizing and understanding anything so ostentatiously at our doors. By 2050 the world population is likely to reach 9 billion and this would be the biggest cause of premature death and as per a survey about 3.6 million people will be killed every year due to shortage of water availability. In the environmental crises. By that time the demand for water is expected to rise more than so much percent and due to this hike another 40 percent of the global population would have to live a life without the accessibility of water- the very essence of life.

Mahatma Gandhi, the Father of Nation, had once said, “There is enough on Earth for everybody's need, but not enough for everybody's greed.” The insight in what Gandjhi said calls for serious self-introspection and the upkeep of which has turned out to be a very big challenge for the sustenance of the environment as well as for the survival of the mankind.

First, we need to awake the people from the deep slumber of indifference to the wastage of non-renewable and non-replenishable sources of natural resources. Air pollution which makes the most vital element of survival of all the creatures on the earth must be given the most serious thought. Air pollution is a matter of great concern which demands our urgent attention. Smog is the latest threat and we urgently need to take initiatives to rectify the situation. A time-bound check on the rapid industrialization and emission of carbon following from the chimneys of the factories is essential to turn the air purer to breathe in. It will also lead to bringing down the level of global warming, a danger which affects the climatic condition of the world.

Energy is considered as the engine of development of a nation. Fossil fuels are not only the most important form of energy but also the assets of heritage and legacy. We need to minimise their use and, to this end, we must look up to the sources of renewable energy.

Aable land is shrinking and, no doubt, there is significant downfall in its quality. The adoption of organic farming and its spread is as a step towards the farming making excessive use of various chemicals initiated during 1960s, is set to bring the dead land back to life. It will reduce the fast declining fertility power of the soil. This is most urgent keeping in view ever-soaring global population and the ever-increasing demand for food.

Though women have excelled in different fields and their situation has improved yet there is a huge number of women who need attention and intervention by government. Earlier, it was very hard for uneducated rural women to avail benefits of government schemes. infact, there were no effective schemes for such women before Modi government. In the last four years, many schemes have been started under the popular Beti Bachao, Beti Padhao campaign. The Finance Minister declared the success of Sukanya Samriddhi Yojana which was started under this campaign. This scheme was started in 2015 and in just two years, more than 1,26 lakh accounts have been opened. In this in which a total sum of Rs 19,183 crore has been deposited.

Modi Government also started an annual scheme for the poor parents named Ujwala Yojana for women living below poverty line under which these women get Rs 1,000 per month for 5 years. Till now, around 5 crore women have benefitted from this scheme. The target up to 2019 has now been increased to 8 crore women.

Divyangs

Along with Dalits, Tribals and OBCs, the Central Government has also identified sections that were neglected for decades. The government has come up with effective and specific policies and programs for these groups.

The government now uses the term ‘Divyang’ for physically handicapped people. mega-camps have been conducted to distribute annuities, hearing aids, tricycles etc among the needy. From 1992 to 2014, only 100 such camps were organised, but in two years from 2014 to 2016, more than hundred such camps were organised. Prime Minister M. Narendra Modi participated in the camp and told in the Guinness World Records where more than 10000 people were given such equipment.

The central government started many schemes and programs for senior citizens and the disabled 75% people are in this category.

Senior Citizens

The increase in life expectancy has meant change in age demographics of the country and an increasing number of elderly persons. The government has started many schemes and programs for senior citizens and the disabled 75% people are in this category.

In 2014-15 and 2015-16, Rs 42 crores were spent on 41,000 senior citizens and in 2016-17, Rs 29 crores were spent on 30,500 senior citizens under different schemes for senior citizens. The National Policy on Senior Citizens is also being changed with changing socio-economic requirements.

Every year, senior citizens are rewarded for their efforts in different fields through Vayu Shri awards. The Ministry of Social Justice and Empowerment and Ministry of Health have also teamed up to provide senior citizens with smart card linked to Aadhaar that will help them to avail several health benefits.

Nanaji Deshmukh Scholarships

The Prime Minister, in the contemporary times of stress and mental wellness, has also taken a key part of wellness and plays an important role in keeping us healthy, preventing diseases and ensuring a better quality of life. work and being persistent in answer writing matters. I know sometimes we get demotivated, don’t feel like writing answers or try to focus on reading more content. It is very important to track into but here is what the role of peer group or study environment comes into picture. I feel many online websites have come up in recent past like InsightsonIndia, ForumIAS, lasbada that provides daily free answer writing practice. Make best use of them and mark your answer sheet. Each day mark the things you think you are not able to talk to properly. I have seen many copies where sometimes aspirants try to make things in every answer. Here I would also like to caution you. I have seen that many students somewhere are demotivated, don’t feel like writing. It is the time to take action, chalk out the strategy. I found it more helpful than test series and classes by the coaching institutes. you have to make a group and write daily answer and can review each other’s answer. Peer Group has been the key to my strategy. I read the peer group and mark the things you think you are not able to talk to properly. I have also used to write whatever I knew about the question in my first two attempts and that probably was the reason behind low marks in GS.

Introduction: It is one of the most crucial steps. I believe it left the first impression on the examiner. Try to write in a proper manner. I used to follow mainly 4-5 ways to write it:

- Definition: If I know the definition or crucial of issue let’s say Food security I tried to introduce my answer with definition of food security. I started with the points and then make the understanding clear. I never started the answer in line one and straightforward jump to subtopics.

Break the question into subparts: Generally UPSC asks 2-3 questions in one question itself. Try to break it and answer it properly.

Visibility: After breaking the question into subparts ask the question, try to highlight it while writing, so that an examiner can easily find out where and how you addressed different parts of the questions. It helps in two ways, first one will be answering all the subparts will and ensure flow in the answers.

Point Format: Try to write most of the answers in point format especially in GS in 1,2,3 and while answering any subparts, make subheading in front of every question, so that its easy to make out what one is going to write. And after writing a statement try to substantiate your answer with an example. Don’t try to copy the points across the question.

How to Study a Particular Topic

- UPSC Syllabus: First and foremost you have the UPSC syllabus with you always and this should be the ultimate source around which our preparation should revolve. Read it as many times you can. It will help you in internalizing it and connect with topics while reading newspaper or current affairs magazines.

- Strategy to prepare

- Definitions: Make a separate copy for each paper and find out important keywords for GS 2: Constitution, Politics, Governance, Poverty, Hunger, Governance, Poverty, Hunger, Environment, Chronicle, Accountability, Citizen Charter and so on. And write good definition of each of it. Carn it by heart and understand crux of each of it. Generally question revolves around it. For instance, question on Poverty was asked again and again in previous year so does is on Secularism. Here good clear definition which will help in writing answers.

- Mindmaps/Charts: Try to make mind map or charts on each of the topic and cover all the important points and facts, figures, case studies in a concise manner. It will help you a lot at the last moment for revision as well as give you a visual impact.

- Collect Important Facts and Figures: It is really important while reading a particular article or news clipping you have to make a note of it in a notebook in a mind map so that you will be able to revise it and remember it during the exam.

- Note of Important Historic Personalities: Help you in covering history portions. UPSC in recent past tends to ask comparison between important personalities.

- Important Judgments: Collect important judgments. It will help you in anterior GS 2 answers a lot like on Privy Misuse of Ordinance Power, Centre-State Relations, Basic Structure Doctrine, Environmental Justice, Electoral Reforms and so on.

Here again, I would like to say don’t overburden yourself. The purpose of this article is not to give you a recipe but express the things that I feel are important for preparation in Mains. Before going through this understand your strengths and weaknesses, and do not worry about the things because I felt my weakness in this part. And this journey has told me that the recipe of success stories lies in knowing thyself and working over one’s weakness & capitalizing on one’s strengths.

Lest We Should...

The solution lies only in our mentality, in our insight and, most importantly, in our social responsibility. Personal efforts are not enough; we need the involvement of the environment if we cherish to see the world alive and intact.

Ban Ki-moon, the famous South Korean diplomat and former Secretary General of the United Nations Organization, reflected the world scenario and significance of the environmental health in his following words, “Saving our planet, lifting people out of poverty and promoting peace...these are one and the same fight. We must connect the dots between climate change, water scarcity, energy shortages, food security and women’s empowerment. Solutions to one problem must be solutions for all.”

The rapid depletion of natural resources is precipitating jeopardies the lives of flora and fauna on the earth. Keeping in mind the rate at which the various natural resources are being fast depleting, the world is abuzz with rumours and terrified with the looming fear that the day is not far off when the coming generations would have to reach out to the nearest inhabitant on the moon. It is and will be a reality, for even our predecessors had been blessed with and which they themselves got deprived of.

Lester R. Brown, the famous US environmental activist had mentioned, “We have not inherited this earth from our forefathers; we have borrowed it from our children.” Hidden within this earth are the fruits of billions of years, the geological and biological reflections which must make us to think seriously over how to protect environment to boost the longevity of mankind and the sustenance of bio-diversity on the earth.

It is the time to take action, chalk out the plans seriously, that too, immediately and impeccably—otherwise we would not live the remaining life with the same quality that we lost and why. Therefore it is high time that we accord priority to check environmental degradation and control the production. If we can ensure a better life for our future generations otherwise we would be left with no food or water to have any children to come but to die together some day.

EMPOWERING THE MARGINALISED FOR INCLUSIVE GROWTH AND SOCIAL JUSTICE

Swadesh Singh
Devi Dayal Gautam

In the last four years, the Narendra Modi-led government at the Centre has shown its tireless commitment for an egalitarian society by bringing various sections of the society together. The government has made many provisions and has come up with several policies and programs in the field of education and employment to empower the vulnerable, deprived and depressed sections of the society and ensure social justice and harmony.

Keeping in mind that government jobs are limited, the Mod government has tried to provide support to such sections in setting up their own business so that they can earn their livelihood as well as create jobs for others – thus creating a cycle of self-empowerment. The government has been trying to ensure ‘ease of living’ for the deprived sections by providing basic social and physical infrastructural facilities at cheaper rates. Prime Minister Narendra Modi has boldly envisioned a ‘New India’ by 2022, work for which was started four years ago by empowering and ensuring social justice for the deprived sections of the society.

New way of Empowerment
After Independence, we accepted a group-based approach for the socio-economic development and empowerment of weaker sections of society. Our Constitution makers provided for reservation of SCs, STs and OBCs. They believed that equality will be actualised by ensuring reservation in the field of education and employment and rest of the problems will be resolved automatically. However, due to various reasons, this did not happen. We need to now come up with new strategies to empower the deprived and marginalised communities. Prime Minister Narendra Modi has taken the right initiative in this direction by trying to come up with out of the box solutions. In one of his speeches at Bijapur while inaugurating Aayushman Bharat scheme, he said: ‘One cannot reach a new destination while following the old path. New goals cannot be achieved with old techniques; our government is working with a new approach.’

Inclusion
Soon after the formation of the present Government, Jan-Dhan Scheme was launched to aggressively push the process of financial inclusion of those who still did not have bank accounts. Bank accounts opened under this scheme, mostly include those of people from deprived and marginalised sections. These people did not have an account though they needed it the most. Now money from different government schemes is directly channelised into their bank account removing intermediaries and leakage. Similarly under the Prime Minister Mudra Scheme, loans were granted to lakhs of people – comprising a majority of women, Dalits and backwards.

Promoting Entrepreneurship
Under Stand Up scheme, financial help was provided to Dalits, tribal women to start their own greenfield enterprises. Under the scheme, each of the 1.25 lakh bank branches were expected to facilitate two such schemes.

STRATEGY TO CLEAR UPSC CIVIL SERVICES MAINS EXAM

Sachin Gupta, Rank 3 Holder in UPSC CSE 2017 speaks:

I came from middle class background with my father as farmer and mother as government school teacher. I have seen the difference of schools in which I studied and in which my mother use to teach. Although at that time I was just a child, things changed when I accidentally went for teaching children from deprived sections of society, it changed everything. I started relating my childhood observations of difference. It changed the overall thought process from building a career in Engineering towards aspiring for bringing change in society. I always believe there is a supernatural power that somehow helps us out at every situation; we just need to be prudent enough to do the right things.
