INNOMATION ORIENTED INITIATIVES IN HIGHER EDUCATION

Indranil Manna

"The highest education is that which does not merely give us information but makes our life in harmony with all existence."

- Rabindranath Tagore

Statistically speaking, India for its 1.25 billion people offers higher or tertiary level education through nearly 800 universities (including central, state, private, deemed and all other categories) who are mostly governed by the University Grants Commission (UGC) and nearly 100 Institutes of National Importance (INIs) which were created through special acts. These INIs were the Institutes of National Importance (INIs) and nearly 100 Institutes of National Excellence (IIEs) which were created through special acts of the Parliament or State Assemblies who directly report either to the Central or State Government. The latter group includes the famed Indian Institute of Technology (IITs), Indian Institutes of Management (IIMs), All India Institutes of Medical Sciences (AIIMS) etc. The chain of IITs and National Institutes of Technology (NITs) represent the top echelon of technology institutes in the country which can boast of the most modern curriculum and infrastructure, though many state level university engineering departments are no less eminent in terms of their contributions and track record. Like all other seats of higher learning, engineering institutions too primarily deal with and focus on a single entity – knowledge, which they either disseminate (by teaching) or create (by research). In order to remain relevant and serve the society, engineering education needs a special outlook or approach different from conventional pedagogic style only consisting of lecture, discourse, monologue, text books, notes and examination leading to a degree without practical training for invention and innovation.

Science-Engineering-Technology

Successful pursuit in science, engineering and technology yields discovery (a new law, element or compound, phenomenon), invention (a new principle, device, drug, machine, process), and innovation (a new and economical product or process), respectively. For this, education must build on relevant scientific theories and principles to address the issues of 'need' of the society; e.g. high strength material, greater thermal/electrical conductivity, affordable healthcare, sustainable energy resources, remedial measures for carbon footprint, efficient devices/machines etc.

HOW CAN PARENTS DE-STRESS YOUNG ADULTS DURING EXAMS

Nidhi Prasad

Round the time of March every year when Delhi gets soaked in colors with flowers blooming all around, each roundabout of Delhi presents a pleasing sight so comforting to the eye, in this pleasing back drop coincidentally this is also a time for lot of gloom and stress for parents of Delhi, after all its Exam time too. The "monster" of Exams is made to look larger-than-life each passing day.

Why have we made to look examination as a monster?

An examination (exam) is a test. It is a set of question that finds out student's knowledge on various topics or field. And that's all an exam really is. A test to understand how much a child has learnt so far in each subject. How well she/he does in exams, does not define him.

Today when a child grows up, the first term that she/he faces is the word "Exam Stress" the pressure is so much that when it gets converted into "depression" nobody knows, and this depression leads to nervousness which is the main cause behind poor performance in exams, hence it is most important for parents to be aware of these signs of nervousness, it is very important for parents to keep the children relaxed, particularly during exam times. It is never a good idea to compare two children with each other as each child is unique with different strengths. Children are like flowers, of the family, when we plant flowers, put seeds there, nourish them properly, they will blossom to their fullest and they will get an opportunity to blossom to their fullest and this children's need to start preparing for the exam from the very beginning, so as when exam time comes, these children will be blooming like flowers and would not face any anxiety, worries that means the atmosphere will be stress-free.

pervasive and effective and usher in significant positive changes in the higher education system, particularly in engineering and technology. Some of the notable initiatives are summarized below:

Research and Innovation: Start up India Initiative for HEIs

To promote culture of innovation in universities, the Government of India has launched a new scheme titled Start up India Initiative for Higher Education Institutions (SIHIs). The initiative aims to create an ecosystem for innovation among students and promote the culture of innovation in Indian HEIS across the country.

GIAN should augment quality of higher education in India, and create an effective eco system for innovation among students and activities and in turn can make them successful entrepreneurs one day. The initiative envisages creation of 1000 Institute Innovation Centers (IIC) across the country to spread awareness, promote the culture of innovation among students and create an effective eco system for ushering in ‘New India’ that can result into innovative products by encouraging and nurturing young students to explore new ideas that can result into innovative products and activities and in turn can make them successful entrepreneurs one day. The initiative envisages creation of 1000 Institute Innovation Centers (IIC) across the country to spread awareness, promote the culture of innovation among students and create an effective eco system for ushering in ‘New India’ that can compete with the likes of Stanford and MIT.

Global Initiative for Academic Networks (GIAN)

GIAN initiative on creating a new programme titled Global Initiative of Academic Networks (GIAN) in Higher Education aims to connect the Indian academia with the international talent pool of scientists and entrepreneurs by inviting them to teach and participate in research in Indian HEIS.

Innovation has become synonymous with evolution and progress in life. Education is the only way to effectively train the population not only to benefit from the exploits and fruits of innovation but also to actively participate and contribute to this crusade for creating a better, safer and healthier planet.

ECO BOARD: Sustainable Building Materials from Agro-waste

“ECOBOARD” is an innovative green product that not only protects forests but also prevents farmers from burning leaves over agri-residues in the fields. An Estimate of 150 million tons of surplus agri-residues are burnt in open fields every year (300 million tons of CO2). Below are the highlights of the product:

1. Additional Income to Farmer: ECOBOARD utilizes the left over agri-residues and provides additional income source to farmers.

2. Open-Source Technology: ECOBOARD’s Open-Source approach has encouraged entrepreneurs to install more than 3000 m3/day in Developing Countries. (Equivalent to protection of about 16 lakh trees per year).

3. Continuous Innovations: We strongly believe that Nature has solutions for our everyday challenges and we have proven this time and again by introducing Ultra-Engineered Products for affordable Green Homes.

4. Innovative Products: The high quality and performance of green building materials like Panels, Doors, Walls, Floors, etc., developed by ECOBOARD have been proven and accepted by reputed government, organizations, architects, interior designer’s etc in India and abroad.

5. Value to Customers: A company with over three decades of expertise in developing BIS approved environmentally conscious building materials for customers, so that they can experience modern day building materials that not only has aesthetic value but is also renewable.

6. European Standards with Agro-waste: ECOBOARD is the first company in the world to achieve European Standards along with BIS approval using “Agro-waste”. It has developed Green panels by personally hand-picking natural-fibers that are available in the villages of India and process them in advanced German machinery to achieve superior quality.

7. Applications: Homes, Kitchens, Offices, Hotel, Industrial, Hospitals, College, Packaging.

8. Giving Back: ECOBOARD works towards the R&D and capacity building of rural micro-enterprises that are owned by the self-made carpenters of these villages.

9. Rural Economy: With every piece of furniture made by ECOBOARD, you don’t just get environment friendly sustainable furniture, you also get a sense of pride: a chance to help build a strong rural economy.

Innovation in HEIs - IMPRINT

The relevant question now is what is next? www.Jobriya.com

The Government of India, in order to promote the culture of innovation in India, particularly in the technology institutions like IITs, NITs and all other HEIs, recently formulated a new and unique scheme called Impacting Research Innovation and Technology (IMPRINT), primarily with the goal of translation of knowledge from research into viable technology (product or process). Initiatives to pro-mote research and innovation is nothing new. Yet why was IMPRINT conceived? What is different about IMPRINT? Let us address these two issues first.

As we all know, India with its over $2.5 trillion gross domestic product (GDP) eyeing a double digit growth is a mighty economic force in the world supported by a formidable 1.25 billion population with more than 800 million below the age of 35. Furthermore, India may soon be crowned the youngest nation in the world with average age of 28. However, it is also a reality that our nation faces multitude of daunting challenges in terms of energy/physical/ cyber security, potable water scarcity, environment and climate change, poverty and unemployment, and easy and affordable education and health care for billions. A vast majority of these tasks demand engineering inter-vention and technological innovation. A clarion call was made by the Honorable President and Prime Minister of India to address all engineering and techno-voluntary challenges faced by the nation through a nation-wide unique initiative called IMPacting Research INnovation and Technology (IMPRINT) launched on November 5, 2015 from the Rashtrapati Bhavan. Thus, the initial version of IMPRINT was conceived as a national initiative of MHRD through an inclusive and sustainable mode of translational research.

Imprint

IMPRINT is different from usual research initiatives because (i) it is meant not only for creation but for translation of knowledge into viable technology, (ii) it addresses not just one but all technology challenges faced by the nation, (iii) it relies upon a total inclusive model of crowd sourcing and involving all concerned stakeholders from ministry to industry. Consequently, the initial round of IMPRINT (IMPRINT I) created an unprecedented enthusiasm among the researchers in academia. From 2612 initial proposals only 259 were selected and 142 projects are now underway with an outlay of Rs. 485 core for three years. Until now IMPRINT I has culminated into more than 200 peer review publications and about 25 patent applications and invention disclosures. Over 250 project staff including about 100 Ph.D. scholars and 50 post-doctorates have been engaged in various projects. In order to disseminate the progress of all the 142 projects, a new KNOWLEDGE PORTAL has been created in the IMPRINT website (https://imprint.india.org/knowledge-portal) to display the recent exploiting and progress, significant results and possible breakthrough achieved on a monthly basis from each project, apart from documenting the knowledge (publication, report, patent) and facilities (instrument, device, laboratory) created, manpower (student, scholar) trained, financial resources obtained/ utilized, collaboration (with industry or partners) pursued, and above all, the prototype, pilot or product developed under the on-going IMPRINT I research project. The portal will remain active until the logical conclusion of the projects. All the products and prototypes will be displayed in public through an exhibition in February 2019.

Imprint II

Encouraged by the success of IMPRINT I, a newer version called IMPRINT II, was planned in a more inclusive manner by expanding the catchment of implementing institutions, by adopting a more demand-driven strategy of solution development and by incorporating the specific requirements of the states of India so as to make end-user translation and technology adoption easier. The SERB (Science and Engineering Research Board) in the Department of Science & Technology (DST) was made the nodal agency for implementing the IMPRINT II initiative working along with the National Coordinator. All faculty members and researchers in all Government of India funded HEIs working in engineering and technology areas, especially in IITs, NITs, ISERs, IIITs or CUs are eligible to submit proposals in IMPRINT II as the Principal Investigator (PI). IMPRINT II shall maintain an appropriate inventory of stakeholder needs and map the same against various products/ technologies/ knowledge base likely to be developed under the initiative.

Overall outlay for IMPRINT II is about Rs. 670 crore during 2018-19 to 2021-22 with 50-50 budget sharing between MHRD and DST. Like IMPRINT I, this version also evoked wide spread enthusiasm. From 2145 initial proposals screened to 549 final proposals, eventually only 120 projects were selected for funding after two rounds of rigorous review running over three months. Help from over 500 experts including the Expert Pool of Indian National Academy of Engineering (INAE) was utilized for blind project review and knowledge management. Core mandate of IMPRINT II has been:

- Develop products/ processes and viable technologies for addressing the identified challenges in different domains
- Formulate and develop focused translational projects against identified technology thrust areas by various stakeholder ministries
- Evolve new technology transfer models for enabling technology diffusion to industry and stakeholders
- Continuously monitor and refine the challenges and gaps in the various technology domains and collect feedback from stakeholder ministries/ industry
- Align the programmers and projects with the needs of various industry sectors and the States of India in order to achieve end-user translation
- Facilitate building capability and competencies in identified technology thrust areas in the various HEIs and universities in order to plug the demand-supply gap

Detailed information about the scope, mandate, eligibility, review/monitoring mechanism, and format/ procedure for submission of preliminary and final project proposals are available on the IMPRINT website (www. IMPRINT-2.in) and www.imprintindia.org). An extended version of IMPRINT II will soon be rolled out to address special societal challenges covering issues on pollution, waste management, health care, personal security, etc.

Conclusion

In the present era of knowledge based society, science is no longer only a curiosity driven act but is felt as an intrinsic necessity and urge to translate knowledge into societal benefit through engineering invention and technological innovation. Scientific pursuits demand continuous efforts, not sequential. Outcome is mostly slow and incremental but at times disruptive leading to paradigm shift and opening new chapters and avenues. Innovation has become synonymous with evolution and progress in life. Education is the only way to effectively train the population not only to benefit from the exploits and fruits of innovation but also to actively participate and contribute to this crusade for creating a better, safer and healthier planet.

Children who play a very important role in the world. Parents seem to be bright in favor of situations at times does not always stay optimistic even if how something can be done positive mental attitude means minds "no one is perfect in this than they are capable of. It guests are welcome gingerly. eating etc. are set. Even the they would spend socializing, home about how much time Curfews are set, cables Parenting most of the houses changes.

A word about Good Parenting is the most difficult As parents is it not our duty to provide conducive atmosphere at home? So that they attempt to do much better than they are capable of. It should be inculcated in their minds "no one is perfect in this world and so are you" having a positive mental attitude means how something can be done rather than saying it cannot be done as parents you must always stay optimistic even if situation at times does not seem to be bright in favor of you. A word about Good Parenting Parenting is the most difficult tasks in the world. Parents play a very important role during this time. The parents' role can act as a catalyst for increasing the performance of their child. Here are few things which parents of a child should do during examination time. Exam time is the most stressfull time in a student's life especially for those who are appearing for the first time in board exams. But this time period can be most enjoyable and memorable time if a child gets 360-degree support from her or his parents.

Watch for signs of nervousness. Children who experience nervousness betray signs of worry, feel tense, get lots of headaches and stomach pains, be irritable, lose interest in food or eat more than normal, do not enjoy activities they previously enjoyed, seem negative and low in their mood, seem hopeless about the future. If the pressure of exams is getting to a child, parents must not hesitate to seek help from a psychologist or a counselor. Having someone to talk to the children about their work can help. Support from a parent, tutor can help children share their worries and keep things in perspective.

Talk about exam nerves. Remind your child that feeling anxious is normal. Nervousness is a natural reaction to exams. The key is to put these nervous to positive use. If anxiety seems to be getting in the way rather than helping, encourage your child to practice the sort of activities they will be doing on the day of the exam. This will help her feel less scary on the day.

Have realistic expectation from your child as per his interest and capabilities. Highlight your child strengths. Encourage eating healthy food and some form of regular exercise. - Following a healthy lifestyle is the best way to prevent examination stress. There is a strong relationship between food intake and mental makeup of a person. There is a famous saying that goes: "Jaisa Aahaar - vaise Vichaar", or "Jaisa Ann waaiwa Maron" commonly translated as "what you eat, makes up your thoughts", proper nutrition and exercise helps in managing exam stress.

Stop comparing your children with siblings or others. Don't harp on previous results

Provide healthy, positive environment at home. Don't add to the pressure. Try to listen to your child, give support and avoid criticism. Before they go in for a test or exam, be reassuring and positive. Let them know that failing isn't the end of the world. If things don't go well they may be able to take the exam again. Appraoch parents like: "Don't worry it's just another exam" "Don't worry about results, just do your best", these reassurances reduce mental pressure of exams on students, such phrases also give emotional support to students. They feel more confident and focus more on exam preparation rather than worrying about results. Avoid nagging. Be a good listener, don't mix academic issues with family conflicts.

Students should introduce SMALL MODIFICATION IN THEIR LIFESTYLE, e.g. introduce meditation go to sleep on time, have nutritional diet,and exercise moderately and manage their stress levels.

TIPS FOR CHILDREN

QUICK FIX FOR CONCENTRATION FOR STUDENTS

While reading a lesson, a student's mind tends to wander. Students need to study for hours without actually grasping anything.

• Gather all of your studying materials. Your studying materials include things like notes, textbooks, study guides, posters, highlighters, or anything else you might need to concentrate and be productive while studying. This includes a snack like a granola bar or nuts, and a bottle of water. All your materials should be within arm's reach so you don't disrupt yourself by going to retrieve your things when you're in the zone studying.

• Writing Practice is a must. Write answers in points. Find an effective study method. Finding an effective study method that suits you can help you stay concentrated while studying. Again, every person studies differently, so you will have to experiment and find a method that works best for you to maintain focus. Try to understand and identify your learning style. Essentially, the more ways you can experience and interact what you're learning, the better your chances will be of staying on task and absorbing what you're reviewing. Some- times, simply reviewing readings, notes, or quizzes can serve to refresh your memory. If it helps you to study, but some other study methods include:

1. Making notecards. For vocabulary or academic terms, making notecards and flashcards and repeatedly reviewing them can help with memorizing words, terms, and concepts.

2. Drawing. Some studying requires reviewing structures and diagrams. Copying those diagrams and structures, and drawing them yourself allows you to create and visualize what it you're trying to study, therefore making it more memorable.

3. Creating an outline. Creating an outline may help you organize your notes, but bigger concepts include the smaller details. It can also help create visual sections and diagrams that might help recalled details when exam time approaches.

4. Think of an incentive. Before you start studying, think of something that can serve as a reward for you successfully studying. For example, after reviewing your history notes for 1 hour, talk to your roommate about the day, or watch your favorite upcoming television program. An incentive can motivate you to concentrate on studying for a specific amount of time, and then you reward yourself for your solid block of time concentrating on your work.

5. Set Realistic study goals. While the subjects you need to study are vast, pick the most interesting topics, you can shift your perspective while studying to make concentrating easier. By setting goals for yourself, you change your studying experience from having to "get through," the subject, to reaching your goals points and continually succeeding in progressing with your study session. For example, instead of having the mentality of, "I have to study all of chapter 4 tonight" set a goal for yourself with something like, "I will study sections 1-3 by 4:30, and then take a break." This sectional break of study time increasing your willingness to concentrate and reach your studying goal.

6. Study with short breaks. Normally, studying for about an hour at a time and then taking a 5-10-minute break is the most effectual study schedule to maintain concentration on a given task. Taking a short break gives your mind time to relax, so it can be ready to study productive and absorb information. Move around. Get up and stretch after sitting for about an hour. These short breaks in studying will make the time you spend studying more productive and attentive.

7. NCERT text books are blue-prints. Do not ignore them. Study them thoroughly attempt questions given at the end thoroughly. Always remember desire, dedication, concentration and the will to achieve and win will make you a champion. When you study well students very best in their preparation and examination.
