Dr. Ranjeet Mehta

India is on the cusp of a massive digital revolution. We are in exciting times and being a digitally native country, there is an opportunity to ride on the digital infrastructure to strengthen payments, trade and information flows to aid sustainable and inclusive growth. The Digital India campaign hopes to connect villages with broadband internet. As per a McKinsey report, the country’s GDP will be boosted by $550 billion, pushing the GDP to $1 trillion by 2025. E-Commerce firms are striving to bank on India’s rural market in cooperation with the government’s Digital India initiative.

As a result, e-governance is becoming an important fundamental science. It is the study of matter, its properties, how and why substances combine or separate to form other substances, and how substances interact with energy. Chemistry tries to decode the details of Chemical molecules and their component atoms.

The research and development in the field of chemistry has given us everything from soaps, cosmetics to medicines. The field of chemistry basically studies the substances and how these substances react with each other. Chemistry is a discipline which studies elements and compounds, atoms, molecules and ions, their composition, structure, properties, behaviour and the changes they undergo during a reaction with other substances. Chemistry professionals may also enter into other branches related to this field. A career in chemistry is definitely the good way to contribute positively to this world through your work.

It’s almost unbelievable to know - what happens in just one internet minute. In just a single minute on the web, 46.2 million photos are shared on Instagram, a total of $751.522 is spent online. 1.8 million Snap are created and there are 990,000 swipes on Tinder. Google performs 3.5 million searches high minute while 4.1 million videos are viewed on YouTube within the space of 60 seconds. In a social media universe where there are no barriers to entry and almost infinite amounts of competition, the content game needs to become winner take all scenario. Since people don’t have the time to look at the 452,200 tweets sent every minute, they naturally settle to the things that already have social proof.

Food goes bad because of chemical reactions that occur between food molecules. Fats can become rancid. Certain bacterial growth can make one sick. What about products that don’t contain fat? The answers to many such questions lie in the study of Chemistry. Chemistry is indeed a part and parcel of our everyday life. A human being himself or herself is a big bag of chemicals! Employment outlook

Industrial growth has led to a great demand for trained chemists and this trend is expected to continue. Opportunities for students in Chemistry exists in industries manufacturing textiles, petroleum products, rubber, plastics, agricultural products, papers and pulp, metal, cement and aerospace industries, pharmaceutical, food, fertilizers, paints and even in cosmetic and other personal product manufacturing industries. Food chemistry and technology incorporates the work chemists do in food flavoring, pet foods, food preservatives. These are

India currently ranks low in broadband penetration, even among developing countries. Internet access has grown, driven by a higher penetration of mobile handsets and wireless infrastructure in urban and tier 1 and tier II towns, but broadband penetration in the larger part of the country is still bleak. Current estimates show that broadband only reaches about 500,000 corridors, largely in and around the top 50-100 Indian cities. On the other hand, the country has a digital backbone called ‘Digital India’ with a broadband highway offering a 100-Mbps connectivity to 250,000 panchayats. The funds needed to create a national IP backbone and ensure "last-mile connectivity" have not been supported by a strong underpinning business case. The creation of ‘Digital Bharat’ calls for radical changes to regulatory frameworks, allowing the generation of viable business models for inclusive broadband growth. There is significant public funding involved in making National Optical Fibre Network (NOFN) come true, but private sector operators have so far seen little value in pursuing the implementation beyond the top cities. This calls for the creation of robust models of public-private partnership, driven by a combination of right of way, release of spectrum and creation of a content ecosystem to spur revenue generation via digital infrastructure.

India will have around 500 million internet users by 2020. Barring Unstructured Supplementary Service Data (USSD), which is SMS based and best suited for feature phones, others plan like UPI and BHIM need internet connectivity. To boost connectivity, the government has increased the allotment for BharatNet-routed broadband connectivity to 10,000 cities in 2017-18. The project will help deploy high speed connectivity across 1.5 lakh gram panchayats. RailTel Wi-Fi, the Indian Railways project with Google to deploy free Wi-Fi, is live at 110 stations and shows ample appetite for online transactions.

On the coup of a revolution, digital payments are poised to become the new norm in India, and as more people go online, India should see new taxpayers and better transparency in income in the future. A closed and cashless economy seems set to speed into a gallop with government’s measures designed to encourage more people to embrace digital transactions. Digital payments companies are giving the_forumulators a big thrust. Government is identifying ways to encourage digital payments. To keep pace with the various companies, private companies have to employ a whole new set of customers.

Digital India
Prime Minister Narendra Modi has launched and renewed push to address the digital divide by adopting digital India initiative古老的".

just 15 out of 100 households have access to the Internet, and the digital divide remains a huge challenge that needs to be factored in while planning the democratization of digital access in India. The impending growth of digital assets has offered India with many unique opportunities to leapfrog its traditional deficit in physical infrastructure. It will help enhance the economic conditions in remote areas, spur new businesses by enabling access for a large number of micro small medium undertakings (MSMEs), creating a strong digital identity for the country and providing the growth of digital infrastructure will empower the government to embrace and enable innovation, provide resources to help incorporate digital assets in education, as well as enable improved healthcare access for rural areas. Further, digital infrastructure will be a key enabler in reducing mortality levels. It will bring financial services to the unbanked rural and underprivileged communities and help achieve India’s long standing goal of education for all.

Joint initiative of Department of Electronics & Information Technology (DeITI), ERNET and Sustainable India Trust (SIT)

To conclude, there has been a slow job growth in 2017 and 2018 in India’s IT industry but in 2019 onwards, the sector is expected to be more robust for talent demand. According to HR and staffing solutions provider TeamLease Services, IT companies in India are expected to hire around 200,000 people to get large deals coming their way, the sector is geared up to add around 250,000 new jobs in 2019. Two years ago, in 2017, the IT sector added over 100,000 jobs, according to Nasscom. Now, the adoption of emerging technologies such as artificial intelligence (AI), machine learning and automation for the future of work is driving the industry’s growth. Besides hiring afresh, Indian IT companies will continue to spend on upskilling their existing employees as demand is estimated to increase by around 20% as per Teamlease. The overall job landscape in the IT sector will see radical changes in the next two years and certain job roles will continue to see increased demand. Some of the areas wherein positive growth in hiring will be seen are big data, cybersecurity, architecture, engineering-related fields, data analytics, machine learning, and AI development.

Industry believes that by 2020, the Indian IT sector is expected to surge to about 2 million new additions worldwide, of which around 13% will be in India. A potentially strong area of employment in the technology sector will be data analytics, an increasingly crucial field across industries. Other prominent roles in demand will be computer software engineers, information security analysts, machine learning, mobility, cloud engineers, network analysts, and cybersecurity experts. Health- care IT will also be a major contributor to generating employment in the next two years because of their expanded adoption of AI, robotics, blockchain, and the increasing use of technology in big data, business intelligence, and analytics, while cloud computing opportunities will increase by sector. The demand for all these roles in IT will be in major industries and the IT industry needs to take a generation leap in re-skilling its employees. To meet this demand, the industry needs to be especially crucial for organizations to drive their high-skilled and technologically sound Human Resource Professionals.

The third edition of the Swachh Shakti-2019 was held in Kurukshetra, Haryana. The national convention to highlight the leadership role played by rural women in Swachh Bharat Mission was inaugurated by the Prime Minister Narendra Modi on February 12, 2019. He also addressed and distributed the Swachh Shakti-2019 awards. Speaking on the occasion, Mr Modi said, ‘‘We all have heard about many prestigious beauty contests, but have we ever heard about the ‘Toilet’ contest? In rural India, recently a unique competition was initiated - Swachh Sundar Shauchalaya contest, where people decorated their toilets with paintings, local art and Swachh Bharat Abhiyan messages and logo. With such progress, I believe, there will be a time in India, when one of the villages will become a successful tourist spot, where people will come to visit the colourful toilets.” The event was organised by the Ministry of Drinking Water and Sanitation in association with the Govt. of Haryana. Women Sarpanches and Panches from all over the country participated in the event, aimed at empowering the women. Best practices from grass root level in the rural areas for Swachh Bharat were shared by them. The event showcased the achievements of Swachh Bharat and the recently conducted Swachh Sunder Shauchalay, (neat and clean toilet) - a unique and first of its kind in the world campaign. The movement is a part of ongoing activities under the aegis of the Swachh Bharat Mission, launched on October 2nd, 2014 aimed at achieving a Clean and Open Defecation Free (ODF) India by 2nd October, 2019. Mr. Modi launched the Swachh Shakti program first in 2017 at Gandhinagar, Gujarat. 6000 women sarpanches from across the country had assembled in Gujarat on the occasion of International Women’s Day under the banner of Swachh Shakti 2017. The second Swachh Shakti event, Swachh Shakti-2018 was held at Lucknow in Uttar Pradesh. 8000 women sarpanches, 3000 women Swachhagrahis and women champions from other walks of life from across the country were recognized for their outstanding contribution towards making a Swachh Bharat during the event. Swachh Shakti is an example of how at the grass root level, rural women champions are acting as a change agent to mobilize the community and lead from the front women taking initiatives for a Swachh Bharat. The movement is a part of ongoing activities under the aegis of the Swachh Bharat Mission, launched on October 2nd, 2014, by the Prime aimed at achieving a Clean and Open Defecation Free (ODF) India by 2nd October, 2019.

Pharmacologist: Pharmacologists undertake the development and testing of drugs, analysing how they interact with biological systems. This is essential for ensuring that drugs are effective and safe for human use, and may involve the testing of drugs on animals and/or humans. Pharmacology roles are often lab-based and may involve non-standard hours in order to monitor ongoing experiments.

Toxicologist: Toxicologists may study the effects of drugs on biological systems, but also look at the effects of other substances, both natural and man-made. They work with developing methodologies for determining harmful effects of substances, as well as how to judge correct dosages and therapeutic values. Some with pharmacology, toxicology roles are often lab-based and involve the monitoring of experiments and interpretation of results.

Water Chemist: Water chemists, as the name suggests, are concerned with water. Physico-chemical changes occur over time within the earth's surface. This is a highly interdisciplinary field, so as well as chemistry you may also need knowledge of linked fields such as microbiology and geology. You may find similar roles under the variety of names, for example hydrologist or hydrogeologist.

Analytical Chemist: Analytical chemists use their skills and expertise to analyse substances, identify what components are present and in what quantities, as well as how these components may behave and react with one another. This can include the analysis of drugs, food and other products to determine effectiveness, quality and to ensure they are safe for human consumption or use. www.Jobriya.com

Forensic Scientist: Forensic scientists search for and analyze physical materials found at crime scenes, for example blood and other bodily fluids, hair, or non-biological substances like glass and paint. They are then able to present this evidence for use in legal investigations and courts of law. Forensic scientists will sometimes be called in to speak in court as experts in their field, to explain the evidence to the jury.

Hazardous Waste Chemist: Hazardous waste chemists deal with the management and safe relocation of hazardous materials (hence the common abbreviation "hazmat"). They use their expertise to identify harmful chemical components in the air, water, or soil, evaluate the danger they present and coordinate their removal and containment.

Geochemist: Geochemists study the physical and chemical properties of the Earth, particularly rocks and minerals. They use their knowledge to determine the make-up and distribution of rock and mineral components, and how these may affect the soil and water systems in which they are found. Geochemists may help to identify materials that are suitable for water quality or determine how best to remove hazardous waste.

Chemical Engineer: Chemical engineers are involved in design and development of new products from raw materials. They use knowledge of linked fields such as chemistry, physics, and engineering to transform materials from one state to another, for example making plastic from oil. Chemical engineers may work in almost any industry, assisting in the production of innovative, high-end products such as ultra-fine fabrics or biocompatible implants.

Materials Scientist: Materials scientists study man-made and natural substances to determine their properties, composition and how they could be transformed or combined to increase effectiveness or create new materials. By analysing and experimenting with existing materials, materials scientists are able to enhance the way they are used and create new materials to better serve human needs.

Organic Chemists

- work with organic carbon compounds and include those who specialises in working with rubber, alcohol, oils, natural fats, organic acids, pesticides, organic compounds and their polymerization and precipitation products which include plastics and soaps.

- Inorganic Chemists work with metals, ores, gases, and other inorganic materials found at crime scenes, for example blood and other bodily fluids, hair, or non-biological substances like glass and paint. They are then able to present this evidence for use in legal investigations and courts of law. Forensic scientists will sometimes be called in to speak in court as experts in their field.

A day after the ghastly terror attack on a CRPF convoy in Jammu & Kashmir, the Vice President of India, Shri M. Venkaiah Naidu has asserted that the efforts of the neighbouring country to destabilise India can no longer be tolerated. He said "It is unfortunate that our neighbour has been aiding, abetting, funding and training terrorist groups with the motive to destabilise and impede our progress. This attempt to destabilise and impede our progress can no longer be tolerated. We must stand united in our resolve to make every inch of our motherland a safer place.”

At the release of the book “Selected Speeches” of Vice President, Shri Naidu by the former President, Shri Pranab Mukherjee, hundreds of participants mourned the loss of lives of CRPF soldiers in the Pulwama terror attack by observing silence.

Speaking on the occasion, Shri Venkaiah Naidu spoke at length on the issues confronting the country and various institutions and the need for a united effort to build a good future for the people based on the past and effectively handling the complexities of the present.

Shri Naidu stressed that “Nationalism is all about asserting that ‘I am Indian first’. It is an overarching umbrella under which all our immediate identities are subsumed to form a larger collective. Unfortunately, certain misinformed individuals and organisations are fomenting trouble, and creating divisions where none existed before.”

Nationalism implies sharing a common past, a common present and a common future and in our country that has shown the power of peaceful coexistence and non-violence to the world, the acts of bigotry and narrow sectarianism should be strongly condemn.

Referring to the Polls soon to be held for Lok Sabha and some State Assemblies, Shri Naidu said “I would like to see more men and women being elected as legislators and parliamentarians with national outlook and having in them the four virtues of Character, Calibre, Capacity and Conduct.”

Shri Naidu urged the MEDIA to function as Medium of Empowerment for Development through Informed Actions and to correlate the text with the context for informed communication to the readers and viewers.

Shri Naidu informed the gathering that since assuming the office of the Vice President of India and Chairman of Rajya Sabha, he has extensively interacted with various stakeholders in an earnest endeavour to stir their conscience to introspect and lend their might to realise the quest of our nation to reach new horizons, by invoking the nation’s past and reflecting on the present as the young India seeks to define and realise its future.

The Union Minister for Social Justice and Empowerment, Shri Thaawar Chand Gehlot, the Minister of State for Youth Affairs & Sports and Information & Broadcasting (IC), Col. Rajyavardhan Singh Rathore and other dignitaries are also seen.

Shri Naidu urged the MEDIA to function as Medium of Empowerment for Development through Informed Actions and to correlate the text with the context for informed communication to the readers and viewers.
