Vijay Prakash Srivastava

In a survey at management education institutions, it was found that specialization in this field is available at maximum number of institutes and it also is the most sought after specialization. This can be interpreted as a matter of demand and supply. All business organizations need a number of resources and finance is one such prime resource. In fact finance touches most aspects of a business organization. Even for individuals and families the importance of finance can’t be overstated. Our budget is about finances for the nation. Thus the world of finance permeates us all. Business performance to a larger extent depends on management of finances and all medium and large organizations require specialists to manage their finances.

Projects have major implication for firms. It requires detailed study of the subject to understand all such implications. As such the subject has been developed as a major area of study. In wake of increasing collaboration between countries of the world and liberal trade practices, the subject has assumed greater significance. Every business organization tries to maximize profits and enhance shareholders’ value. The world of business is becoming competitive day by day. In order to first survive and then keep ahead in such competition it becomes a must to make prudent use of all the resources including financial resources. Finance professionals are thus in great demand everywhere and myriad career opportunities are available for them.

In order to make a proper career in finance one or more of the following qualifications will be required.

- Master of Business Administration with specialization in Finance: A postgraduate degree in management expressed as M.B.A or M.M.S, is most sought after by young people now days. A full time course takes two years to complete while for a part time course one needs 3 years. In the course candidates are required to choose one or more specializations. Choosing a specialization gives you the opportunity to explore opportunities in this subject.

- Master of Commerce: Post graduation in commerce is another avenue to enter the realm of finance. Although accountancy covers a major part of commerce, it is seen as a plus point and many firms prefer to employ M.Com degree holders for their accounts and finance function.

- Chartered Accountancy: It is a highly specialized course and can be undertaken after completing 10+2 level. Option to pursue this course.

You will get one hour to solve this paper.

- The Paper II contains questions related to the subject chosen by the candidates. It contains 100 questions worth 200 marks. You will get two hours to solve Paper II.

You can move freely between the different sections of the exam - allowing you greater freedom to manage your time in your own way.

All the questions in Paper I and Paper II are objective-type and multiple-choice questions (MCQs). Overall, you will have to solve 150 questions in the exam which are worth 300 marks. It is mandatory to answer all the questions in the exam.

One can write the exam in either English or Hindi. You can opt for more than 84 subjects for the UGC NET exam but it is recommended to opt for the subject directly related to your major.

There is no negative marking in the exam. Hence, if you do not know an answer, it is best to make an educated guess instead of skipping the question.

Smart Preparation Tips for the UGC NET Exam

1. The Paper I of the exam is designed to test your general awareness, comprehension, reasoning ability and divergent thinking ability. Many guides are available in the market to help you prepare for the previous years’ papers. This will help you practice questions asked in this paper. For Paper II, you should revise the syllabus of your Bachelors and Masters course thoroughly.

2. The three basics always come handy – the topics you can cover beforehand, the ones you need to refer to during the exam and the ones you will need to study once you get out of the paper. With this, you will know what to expect in the exam and how many they are difficult.

3. Once you become familiar with the paper pattern, it will become easier for you to track similar questions in the future.

4. When you solve the previous years’ papers, you may want to write down all the questions related to a topic in one place. This will give you an idea about what types of questions are asked on each topic. This will also help you make crisp and clear formulae to recall that are relevant for the UGC-NET exam.

5. You must also note down the silly mistakes you make and write them down as you solve a question. This will help you avoid them next time you solve a paper.

6. Ideally, it takes 3 to 6 months to prepare for the UGC NET exam (depending on how many hours you devote to studies every day). So, do not procrastinate until the eleventh hour.

7. It takes about 3-5 hours of regular studies to clear the UGC NET exam. You cannot skip the daily revisions if you really want to clear the exam.

8. Make a study plan. Start with the topics you can cover quickly and then, proceed to the more time-taking and difficult topics. As soon as you finish a topic, mark it as ‘done’ in your syllabus.

9. The quickest way to learn something is to teach someone. So, offer free or paid tuitions to some students about your subject. This will help you grasp its fundamentals better.

10. To pick up the tricks and formulae to arrive at an answer in the shortest possible time. Time-saving tips can make a lot of difference in your NET scores.

11. Approximately five questions are asked from each topic mentioned in the Paper I syllabus, which includes: Teaching Aptitude, Research Aptitude, Reading Comprehension, Communication, Reasoning (including Math), Logical Reasoning, Data Interpretation, Information & Communication Technology (ICT), People & Environment, Higher Education System: Governance, Polity & Administration.

12. The Paper I of the exam carries 10 marks. So, focus on all of them equally.

13. The MCQs asked in this paper can be of matching type, true/false or assertion-reasoning type.

14. Some of the easiest sections in Paper I are Communication, Information Technology, Reading Comprehension, Teaching Aptitude, Reading Comprehension (RC) is something we have always done since school days while Teaching Aptitude (TA) is quite generic. RC may need practice while a simple reading through TA chapters should be enough.

15. These days, most people are familiar with computers. If you have dabbled in computers since school, you shouldn’t find the IT section difficult. Try to read up about the latest developments in the field from time to time.

16. As far as Communication is concerned, you might consider taking soft skill courses where you learn about how to take interviews, how to give presentations, and how to participate in group discussions.

17. Many students might have studied about how to do research while preparing dissertations or doing study projects. You also need to read about government policies and the latest summits about education, environment and other topics.

18. Mathematical Reasoning, Logical Reasoning and Data Interpretation sections need regular practice.

19. The National Testing Agency (NTA) announced that from May 2019, its test centres will be offering free coaching services to those who want to prepare for the UGC NET exam. The move has been planned to benefit students hailing from rural or semi-urban areas.

20. On the official site of NTA (https://www.nta.nic.in), you can also take a mock test for the UGC NET exam.

21. Many other online and offline coaching institutes also offer a host of UGC NET coaching packages and study material.

22. These days, several apps are also available on Google or Apple app stores which can help you with your UGC NET preparation for free. Many of these include solved previous year question papers and sample practice questions for free.

23. How to prepare for the NET exam in the Last Month?

At this stage, there must be some topics that you already know well, some which you are not very comfortable about and some which are still untouched. Since you have only a handful of days now, ignore the ones you haven’t touched yet and focus on those you already know.

24. Practice questions from the previous years’ papers, mock tests, or from books and magazines (for competitive exams) available in the market. Note that Paper I is not the qualifying exam anymore. Even if you don’t score minimum qualifying marks in Paper I, your Paper 2 will still get checked. Your total score will be the cumulative marks in Paper I and Paper 2. So, even if you don’t do that well in Paper 1 but score stellar marks in Paper 2, you still have a chance to crack the exam. Moreover, Paper 1 is quite easy and you can easily score around 60% in it without much preparation.

25. Do not carry anything else as there will be no arrangement for safekeeping your belongings at the test centre.

26. Check your keyboard and mouse before you start your test. Any technical difficulties later will only eat away your time unnecessarily.

27. Most questions are easy. Options make an MCQ difficult. Easy questions give you choices while the right answer is quite obvious while difficult questions are designed in such a way that all the options seem like a plausible answer. The good news is that about 50% questions in the UGC NET exam are easy, 30% are of the moderate difficulty level and only 20% questions are really difficult.

28. Do the questions you know well, some which you are not very comfortable about and some which are still untouched. Since you have only a handful of days now, ignore the ones you haven’t touched yet and focus on those you already know.

29. Practice questions from the previous years’ papers, mock tests, or from books and magazines (for competitive exams) available in the market.
