Dr. Ranjeet Mehta

The tourism industry of India is economically important and is growing rapidly. It has become the world's fourth largest export industry after fuels, chemicals, and food. Specifically, tourism accounts for 6 per cent of the world's total merchandise and service exports that represents 30 per cent of international trade in services. Besides, 9.8 per cent of the world's total gross domestic product (GDP) originates from the tourism sector. The influence of inbound tourism on national economies is becoming increasingly important because of the growing size of the tourist market. Inbound tourism stimulates economic growth in numerous ways. For instance, tourism significantly contributes to foreign exchange reserves which help in bringing new technologies for production process. Secondly, tourism stimulates investments in new infrastructure, human capital and increases competition. Thirdly, tourism promotes industrial development through spillover effects and creates jobs and hence stimulates earnings, ultimately generating positive economic externalities.

India is one of the fastest growing economies in the world, which implies that the tourism industry can be expected to grow faster in the years to come. There is a large untapped potential in the Indian tourism industry. In fact, UNWTO noted that India recorded the strongest economic growth of any country in the world. With the growth of the economy, new opportunities are arising in the different fields. A lot of new extraordinary rise in the career field.

Some time back, I had an interesting career query from a young, bright student of class XII who opted for Physics, Chemistry, Biology (PCB), as he came from a family of doctor’s, and surprisingly didn’t want to be a doctor. He was not aware of any upcoming or new age careers in PCB other than Medical. While exploring other options for a career he came across “Medical Coding” which sounded appealing to him. He had heard about it once, but he had a very limited knowledge about this field. So many questions popped up into his mind, like what is Medical Coding? Is it same as Medical Billing? Are there courses available in this area? What qualifications are required to be a Medical Coder? So I decided to write this article which throws light on this promising field.

Nowadays there is an extraordinary rise in the career opportunities available in the different fields. A lot of new opportunities are arising in the Indian job market. Medical coding is an upcoming in-demand field in the stream of Healthcare Administration. Among the various upcoming career opportunities, Medical Coding is also a very good career option for the youth of our country. With the growth of the various sectors, healthcare sector is also witnessing a sudden growth in our country. This sector is generating millions of jobs not only in India and United States but also in other developed and developing countries.

CAREER OVERVIEW- What is Medical Coding all about?

In simple terms, Medical coding is the translation of medical reports into a short code used within the healthcare industry. This helps summarize otherwise cumbersome medical reports into efficient, data-friendly codes. These code sets help coders document the condition of a patient and describe the medical procedure performed on that patient in response to their condition. It is an important process in medical billing and plays a vital role in overall reimbursement cycle.

WHY IS MEDICAL CODING IMPORTANT?

Medical billing and coding employees are essential and crucial for the success of healthcare facilities and providers. They rely on the expertise of medical coding and billing individuals to assist in billing of services provided to their patients and processing of claims. The diagnoses and procedure codes are taken from medical record documentation, such as transcription of physician’s notes, laboratory and radiologic results, etc. Medical billing professionals help ensure the codes are applied correctly during the medical billing process, which includes all the information from documentation, assigning the appropriate codes, and creating a claim to be paid by insurance carriers.

WHAT MEDICAL CODERS DO

Medical coders play a vital role in the connection between healthcare providers, patients and insurance companies. As a coder, you’ll need to read patient charts to determine medical history, including diagnosis and treatments given. Based on these charts, you’ll use a set of established medical codes in order to transcribe patient history into a type of “shorthand” that will be used by both health care providers and insurance companies.

From clinics to hospitals to physicians’ offices, medical coders use medical codes to document patient diagnosis and treatments. Specifically, their duties include:

- Reading and analyzing patient records
- Determining the correct codes for patient records
- Using codes to bill insurance providers
- Interacting with physicians and assistants to ensure accuracy
- Keeping track of patient data

Healthcare industry is a fast growing industry; so as the career opportunities in the industry. The demand for Medical Coders is increasing all over the world day by day. With the growth of private insurance sector in India, sooner or later the healthcare industry of our country might also be based on the insurance and we might also need to do medical coding in different areas of healthcare. The physician offices, the hospitals, and the insurance companies may demand more and more Medical Coders in future also. Presently the need for coders is high in outsourcing companies. India is a developing country and has been trying to focus on improving the healthcare segment and raise it to international standards. The fact is that there are numerous hospitals and nursing homes found across the country that has been providing top class service in a competitive situation. Another aspect is that not only domestic patients, but also those from the surrounding countries. Most of the coders have been coming down to the country for availing better opportunities and facilities that would be required by them. This is why: the scope of candidates to pursue a career in the medical coding market has been growing immensely of which one is medical coding.

There are factors that again make the demand for Coders high. Due to the immediate implementation of ICD-10 (International Classification of Diseases-10th Revision) and EHR (Electronic Health Record), the Healthcare coders are facing a challenge of looking for, trained, efficient, knowledgeable and certified coders.

So there is tremendous chance of career growth in the Medical coding streams. Many healthcare companies are opening new branches which are providing healthcare services. Every year, they hire thousands of trained coders from India; this is due to the fact that many other life sciences backgrounds for the Medical coding functions. In terms of compensation medical coding industries are very good. Companies are providing a very handsome salary and a good career growth in this industry.

Tourism Industry hopes to create millions of job opportunities in next decade and this is the crucial sector where the government has hoped to create unique employment opportunities by providing skill-based training programs for local youths and also to make the infrastructure to meet the international standards. Why not? India has everything - from over 7,000 km of coastline, and rain forest, deserts, snow-capped mountains to temples, mosques, wildlife, cultural heritage.

Thus it has been found that tourism industry in India is growing fast and is expected to do even better in the coming years. In India, the travel industry hopes to create millions of job opportunities in next decade and this is the crucial sector where the government has hoped to create unique employment opportunities by providing skill-based training programs for local youths and also to make the infrastructure to meet the international standards. Why not? India has everything - from over 7,000 km of coastline, and rain forest, deserts, snow-capped mountains to temples, mosques, wildlife, tribal habitation and a multicultural population. With 29 states, 400 cities, a rich history and incredible diversity of culture, India’s travel and tourism industry has tremendous potential to serve as an engine for economic growth, job creation and development.

India has one of the fastest-growing aviation markets in the world. It plans to continue this growth to become the largest market by 2030, with passenger numbers reaching 276 million by 2026 and 442 million by 2035. Unlike many more mature tourist destinations, India has the opportunity to skip the trial-and-error phase many countries have had to undergo, and leapfrog to implement best practices and policies that have worked in other nations to ensure the growth of the travel and tourism industries. India’s international arrivals are expected to reach 15.3 million by 2025, according to the World Tourism Organization which will offer many job opportunities in tourism industry. An ambitious target of 20 million foreign tourist arrivals (FTAs) by 2020 and double the foreign exchange earnings as well has been set. Tourism is a key sector to meet the overall objective of the faster economic growth and employment generation.
