The province was feeling a sense of deep frustration and Gandhiji's call had an electrifying effect upon the people.

Already many meetings of protest had taken place all over the province. On the 6th April hartals were staged in Lahore and other towns. The Governor reacted fiercely. He told the provincial Legislative Council in a minatory speech: "I, therefore, take this opportunity of warning all who are connected with political movements in the province that they will be held responsible for the proper conduct of meetings which they organise, for the language used at, and the consequences that follow from such meetings."

The Tribune stigmatised the speech as blazing indiscretion. On the 10th of April on the receipt of the news of Gandhiji's arrest a procession was taken out at Lahore. The police fired upon the student protesters. The meeting was subjected to shooting. Three local leaders were deported. But what happened at Lahore pales into insignificance compared with the horrors at Amritsar. Here protest meetings had started in February. On 23rd March was held a meeting in support of the Satyagraha movement, followed by another after 6 days to announce and explain the hartal on the 30th.

The immediate reaction of the authorities was to prohibit one of the leaders, Satyapal, from speaking in public. This did not frighten the citizens and on the 30th a hartal was observed and a meeting was held in Jallianwala Bagh. On the 4th April another leader, Saifuddin Kitchlew, was served with a similar notice as Satyapal and a number of others were restrained. On the 6th a complete hartal was observed but peace was maintained. The Deputy Commissioner sought to test a meeting and immediately asked for additional military force. On the 9th April there was a Hindu festival and large过程ions of Hindus, Muslims and Sikhs streamed through the streets. Gandhiji who at the invitation of the leaders was travelling to the Panjab was stopped at Palwal and prohibited from entering the province.

On the next morning (10th April), Kitchlew and Satyapal were deported from Amritsar. The two incidents infuriated and provoked the people. Mobs gathered to see the Deputy Commissioner and entreat him to cancel the orders. The military pickets tried to stop them from moving towards the Deputy Commissioner’s House. The mounted police then fired on the crowd causing some deaths and injuries to many others. The mob was filled with anger.

CIVIL SERVICES EXAMINATION-2019

S.B. Singh

ing its immense popularity among the educated, talented and hardworking youth of the country, civil service examination is bound to be the most bitterly contested exam one can find in India. Civil services command respect, prestige and status like no other job can offer. Besides, it provides job security and attractive perks to provide a comfortable lifestyle. But more than all these factors, it is the nature of job to be performed in civil services that motivates many to aspire for it. Apart from offering challenges and diversity, civil services offer some of the most socially relevant jobs which lend meaning and justification to life.

Unlike the private sector jobs, where one is doing mostly socially irrelevant jobs or, even at times socially harmful jobs, civil services offer satisfying jobs in sectors such as policing, education, health, welfare etc. This is why many candidates try hard to get into civil services rather than pursuing a career in private sector.

As is well known, it is a three stage examination comprising prelims, mains and interview. At all the three levels of the contest (i.e., preliminary, mains and the personality test), there are challenges. But it is at the first stage of the exam, i.e. the preliminary exam, that is found to be most challenging. Although prelims is purported to be just a qualifying test to allow a candidate to appear in the main examination, the reality is that it is both scary and intimidating. It is scary because out of a total of 4-5 lakh aspirants appearing, only 15,000 candidates have a chance to get selected at this level. Thus it actually translates into not a qualifying exam but an elimination process and even the most talented among the aspirants run the risk of getting eliminated. A crowed precipice level itself. If one gets eliminated, he/she has to wait for one full year to get another chance to qualify and appear in the mains. It is intimidating because there is so much to study for the exam ranging from the traditional areas like history, culture, geography, environment and ecology, polity, science and technology to current and contemporary issues. Whereas the mains exam seeks conceptual understanding of the issues, prelims seeks both conceptual understanding and factual knowledge which broadens its scope. Viewed in this perspective, prelims preparation is a true test of one’s nerves, tenacity, persistence, and perseverance.

Dwyer then moved away from the groaning and crying for water, dead in hundreds, many were troops and without any peaceably listening to the this enclosure, according to openings on the other side. In entrance through which an The Jallianwala Bagh was an The reaction of the people was to make a protest against these threats. A meeting was summoned at the Jallianwala Bagh in the afternoon of 13th April. Dwyer regarded it as a challenge to his authority and, therefore, decided to disperse it by force, to make an example and teach a lesson. The Jallianwala Bagh was an open enclosure surrounded by buildings with only one narrow entrance through which an armoured car could not pass. There were three or four small openings on the other side. In this enclosure, according to various estimates, fifteen to twenty-five thousand people had gathered. They were peacefully listening to the speeches of the leaders when Dwyer and his men appeared at the main gate. Dwyer immediately deployed his troops and without any warning, opened fire. Men fell dead in the yard, women were crushed in the blind stampede that ensued. The dead piled up, the wounded lay in agony groaning and crying for water, but the fire continued till the ammunition was exhausted. Dwyer then moved away from the slaughter house proudly surveying his handbook, unconcerned about the dead and the wounded.

The exact figures of the killed and the injured will never be known, whether 379 which was the official version—died, or one thousand, is irrelevant. The fact is that while the Government in England was announcing its intention to train Indians for self-government through political reforms, its agents in India were actually giving Indians lessons in Rightfulness to develop the qualities of servility, cowardice, hypocrisy and sycophancy. Jallianwala Bagh massacre was not an isolated incident, it was only one among the large number of instances of the general policy of terrorising the people pursued in the Punjab. In Amritsar the massacre was followed by clamping the curfew order which remained in force for two months. What was worse, water and electricity supply were cut off. Flogging and whipping were common and an order was given that anyone passing through the lane in which an Englishwoman, Miss Sherwood, had been assaulted, should crawl through it on his belly. Numerous people were tried under the martial law, proclaimed on April 13, Amritsar on the 13th April the mob excited by the news from Amritsar committed arson and plunder. The authorities proclaimed martial law. The horrors of Lahore and Amritsar were repeated. The military officer in charge exercised his ingenuity to impose fancy punishments.

At Gujranwala bombs were thrown on a boarding house, machine guns were fired into villages and in the city to produce ‘moral effect’. Indiscriminate arrests were made and people were subjected to humiliation—flogging and many indignities. The policy of ruling India by the sword alone was impossible, because you can do anything with bayonets but sit on them. He realised that the government—foreign or indigenous, could not rule a people for any length of time without the willing support of unquestioning acquiescence of a section of the effective classes of the people. Besides, he had a personal stake in the Indian affairs. He had worn himself out to process the Reforms and was naturally most anxious for their success. He made up his mind and in the Budget debate on May 22, gave a promise to hold an enquiry into the Jallianwala Bagh massacre and the atmosphere was right for Chelmsford that this method of government (O’Dwyerism) was worse, water and electricity supply were cut off. candidate’s conceptual understanding through writing skills, the prelims tests both concepts and facts. For example, if you are studying Buddhism and Jainism in history for your prelims exam, a question may be asked about the concepts of soul, God, tradition and the nature of religious which requires a very good clarity on related concepts. Then, questions may also be asked that are not related to facts alone, e.g. about various Buddhist councils, where they were held, etc. This requires a thorough preparation of the syllabus like history aspects as well as factual details.

II. It is a common test for both IAS and IFS (Indian Forest Service) exams.

Since there is a single prelims exam conducted for both the IAS and IFS, the format of the prelims exam has been modified to do justice to both. Earlier, a large number of questions were asked from traditional areas like history, polity and geography etc, but nowadays there are more questions on geography, environment, ecology, climate change, foreign policy, etc of a real IFS candidate taking this common test. This new feature of the exam must always be factored in your preparations.

Preparations for both NCERT and NCERT books: Making NCERT books is what everyone would suggest to crack the exam, but NCERT alone is a truly large also. But you can not expect all questions just from NCERT books which, though extensively covered, do not have the factual details asked in the exam. Therefore, you need to consult books beyond NCERT also.

IV. Well known facts count but less known facts also matter: No doubt, you need to know all the well known facts on subjects like history, geography etc., but at the same time, you need to know about less known facts also because UPSC has a passion to set more questions by setting such questions. By less known facts I mean those ones which are not projected extensively in even books. For example, if one is knowing about Money Laundering Act and its provisions, one must also know about its constitutional provisions and the facts cases under this law. It being enforced by Enforcement Directorate etc. We all know about Earth Hour being observed every year, but it is also important to know which agencies is implementing it i.e. WWF.

V. The best test is not coaching stuff but last 15 years’ UPSC questions, you have a more or less success in prelims. If you solve all GS questions asked by UPSC in last 15 years in prelims exam, except the current affairs related questions, you will get more than 15 correct answers. Previous years’ questions do get repeated every once in a while. Apart from these, questions are also taken from the previous year exam conducted by UPSC for CAPF, NDA. Some questions from SSC exam are also asked. Hence, rather than practicing questions prepared by commercial coachings and websites, its wiser to practice last years’ questions as they are full marks and they might be repeated.

VI. Strategy for CSAT: CSAT is of qualifying nature now requiring only qualifying marks (i.e. 33.3% only). It does not make sense to devote too much time for CSAT. The best way of doing CSAT is to do well in your areas, do well in CSAT syllabus and do well in that area to score the qualifying marks. For example, if you are good in general science and maths, then you can go all out and give your exam and it will give you the minimum marks required to qualify. Similarly, if comprehension based part is your forte, use it to your advantage in the exam.

DECODING THE PRELIMS GS SYLLABUS

1. There are two topics of national and international importance: This constitutes the most challenging part of the prelims syllabus in terms of both number of questions and nature of the problem. The problem here is not the current affairs per se, but the attitude of candidates towards it. Current affairs is to hand your streets on daily basis but majority of candidates keep postponing it till the close of the prelims exam and then suddenly get panicky about it. It is not wise to expect that you do current affairs at the last moment because it requires enormous amount of information from diverse fields. Time is not available. So, it is important to that was India that was India that was India

Your daily routine. Secondly, the sources should be of diverse nature to collect information on various topics of current events. At least 2 newspapers should be thoroughly read and a couple of magazines, including a few national periods like The Economist, Time, Newsweek, etc., should also be perused. Events of last one year should be scrutinized in detail. Additionally, some important events of two years preceding last year should also be refreshed.

2. History and Culture: Of late, this exam has tendency more questions on art and culture part. This needs to be thoroughly done through books like “The wonder that was India” by A. L. Basham,” “The Gazetteer of India” etc. Modern India should be given more emphasis because large number of questions are asked from this section of history syllabus. For ancient and medieval India, one can depend on NCERT books but for Modern India, at least 2-3 different books must be consulted. www.Jobriya.com & www.upsc.gov.in. In geography, environment and ecology are also included which makes it a large chunk of the prelims syllabus. The environment must be paid to geography section as it would carry more marks than any other section. Other reading holds the clue to understanding geography. For environment and ecology, websites like ENVIS INDIA, and magazines like Down to Earth will also be important.

3. Polity: A thorough knowledge of Indian Constitution can take care of the polity section. Any good textbook on Indian polity can be referred here but it must be supplemented by reading the articles of the constitution and their interpretations. For this, I would recommend a part of “Constitution of India” by B.N. Sundar and S.K. Ray. Needless to add here that the current developments in judiciary, leg- islature governance issues will also have to be followed along with the constitutional provi- sions. I will recommend two websites viz. Live Law and Constitution can be referred to, for news updates and political news related issues.

For prelims 2019 exam, focus should be on matters relating to judiciary and land- slides and appointment of members of Supreme Court, change in the electoral laws and changes in the RPA Act, 1951.

3. Economic and Social developments: Though in terms of numbers, fewer ques- tions are being set on economics, yet, its current affairs com- ponent has been increasing. In fact, UPSC has become more open to ask current economic questions than the traditional questions on economy. This strengthens the case for a thorough knowl- edge of things like Budget, Economic Survey, and careful perusal of economic news appearing in the pink newspapers (financial newspapers are printed in pink notepaper).• Govt schemes, policies and programs: A good number of questions are asked about various schemes of the government. For this, need to keep important govern- ment websites especially of the Ministries of Agriculture, Rural Development, Social Justice, etc., and websites of Ministries of Environment and Forest, Tribal Welfare, Women and Child Welfare, Social Justice, Rural Development, Department of Science and Technology, Information & Broadcasting, and related areas like space, energy, renewable energy, tourism.

The request for the temporary release on adequate security of the principal Punjab lenders undergoing imprisonment, and the political leaders refused to appear before it.

The Committee’s report was not unanimous-the European members who were in a majority signed one report, the three Indian members prepared a separate report. The findings of the majority report were:

1. That the disturbances were of the nature of a rebellion which might have developed into a revolution;
2. That the outbreaks were the result of the work of a definite organisation and were all connected;
3. That the proclamation of martial law in the circumstances was not wholly justified; and that firing was necessary to put down the mob excesses;
4. That the Government of India was helpless;
5. That Dwyer’s action was open to criticism for firing without warning and continuing the fire too long and excessively; that Dwyer’s object of producing a sufficient effect was a mistaken conception of duty.

The minority disagreed with the first two findings, agreed that firing was justified, but the punishments like crawling, confiscation of property, flogging, salaaming, etc. were excessive; that firing was justified, but the moral effect was a mistaken conception of duty.

We feel that Dwyer by adopting an inhuman and un-British method of dealing with the subjects of His Majesty, the King Emperor, has done great disservice to the interest of British rule in India."

The Congress had appointed its own Committee of Enquiry. The Commissioners were Motilal Nehru (who resigned on having been elected President of the Congress of 1919), Fazul Haq (who could not attend owing to important business), M. R. Jayakar (in place of Fazul Haq), C. R. Das, Abbas Tyabji and M.K. Gandhi. They signed their report on February 20, 1920.

The Committee squarely charged Michael O’Dwyer, "who almost invariably appealed to passion and ignorance rather than to reason" and should how "seriously a responsibility he incurred in misleading both the people and his superiors". They accused him of using oppressive methods in recruiting soldiers for the war thereby creating the spirit of resistance and dissatisfaction which culminated in disturbances of April 1919. The report went on to observe: "We feel tempted to say that he (O’Dwyer) invited violence from the people, so that he could crush them. The evidence shows that he subjected the Punjabis to the gravest provocation under which they momentarily lost self-control."

About Chelmsford they expressed the opinion: "Whilst, therefore we do not think His Excellency was without share of the interests of those who were entrusted to his charge by His Majesty, we regret to say that His Excellency Lord Chelmsford proved himself incapable of holding the high office to which he was called, and we are of opinion that His Excellency should be recalled."

After carefully siftling all the evidence they came to the conclusions:

1. "There was no conspiracy to overthrow the Government in the Punjab."
2. "No reasonable cause has been shown to justify the introduction of martial law."
3. "The Jallianwala Bagh massacre was a calculated piece of inhumanity towards utterly innocent and unarmed men, including children, and unparalleled for its ferocity in the history of modern British administration."

The Government of India considered the Hunter Committee report and came to the conclusion that Dwyer’s action at Jallianwala Bagh was indefensible, that he went beyond any reasonable requirement of the case and that he misconceived his duty. It was, therefore, considered unnecessary to allow him to continue to hold his position. He was consequently retired from office on March 23, 1920. A debate was raised in Parliament concerning Dwyer’s case. Montagu defended the decision of the Government of India on the ground that Britain could not retain its hold upon India by terrorism. Churchill supported the Indian Government and repeated the theory that Dwyer had Saved the Empire by his ruthlessness. He called the Jallianwala Bagh massacre "a monstrous event" "the greatest blot that has been placed upon it (English history) since the days gone by when we burned down Joan of Arc."

Bonar Law condemned Dwyer. Yet when votes were taken as many as 129 voted in favour of Dwyer against 230 who supported the Government. In the House of Lords the Conservatives including many retired Anglo-Indian officials, vindicated Dwyer by a majority vote. The Government, however, stuck to its decision, censured Dwyer and deprived him of his command.

This led to a reaction in his favour. A huge fund was raised-$26,000, which was presented to him with a sword to mark the approval of his services by his admirers. In the meanwhile Gandhi shocked by the violence in the Punjab (Amritsar, Lahore, Kasur, Gujranwala, etc.), Gujarat (Ahmedabad, Vironmagam, Naslid), and Bengal (Calcutta) complained with a lacerated heart, "I had called upon the people to launch upon civil disobedience before they had thus qualified themselves for it, and this mistake of mine seemed to me to be of a Himalayan magnitude." He announced his decision to suspend passive resistance.

Unfortunately little change was visible in the attitude of the Government. The Martial Law regime was prolonged on the plea that the Afghans were hostile and had started an attack on the border. This led to the resignation of Sankaran Nair from the membership of the Viceroy’s Executive Council.

An ordinance was made which delegated powers to the Panjab Government whereby any offence committed on or after 30th March, 1919 could be transferred to the Martial Law Tribunal. Gandhi had already been extrerned from the Panjab. C. F. Andrews who was deputed to visit the Panjab and report was prohibited from entering. Later Eardley Norton, the lawyer, sent to defend the accused was similarly treated. Horniman, editor of the Bombay Chronicle, was deported from India for his criticism of the Panjab Government. The Government of India expressed its approval of the policy of O’Dwyer and shut its eyes on the misdeeds of the officers. Even before the Commission of Enquiry had started work, an Indemnity Bill was passed to protect the officers who had been concerned in the excesses and who might have been found guilty. The British Committee of the Indian National Congress remarked, "Prussianism could go no further." Baba Saheb Dr. Bhimrao Ambedkar was born on 14th April, 1891 in Mahu in Utter Pradesh. He was the fourteenth child of his parents. The life of Dr. Bhimrao Ambedkar was marked by struggles but he proved that every hurdle in life can be surmounted with talent and firm determination.

In the year 1908, young Bhimrao passed the Matriculation examination from Bombay University with flying colours. Four years later he graduated in Political Science and went on to get a job in Baroda. Around the same time his father passed away. Although he was going through a bad time, Bhimrao decided to accept the opportunity to go to USA for further studies at Columbia University for which he was awarded a scholarship by mahatma Pradeep. He was the Bhimrao remained abroad from 1913 to 1917 and again from 1920 to 1923. During this period he had established himself as an eminent intellectual. Columbia University had awarded him the PhD for his thesis, which was later published in a book form as "A Study of the Evolution of Provincial Finance in British India". But his first published article was "Castes in India - Their Genesis and Development". During his sojourn in London from 1920 to 1923, he also completed his thesis titled "The Problem of the Rupee for which he was awarded the degree of DSc. Before his departure for London he had taught at a College in Bombay and also brought out Marathi weekly whose title was 'Mook Nayak' (meaning Dumb Hero').

By the time he returned to India in April 1923, Dr Bhimrao Ambedkar had equipped himself fully to wage war against the caste system. Meanwhile the political situation in India had undergone substantial changes and the freedom struggle in the country had made significant progress.

While Bhimrao was an ardent patriot on one hand, he was the saviour of the oppressed, who wanted to draw water from the public well. He fought for them throughout his life. In 1923, he set up the, 'Babahkirti Hitkaran Sabha which was devoted to removing the economic and cultural amongst the downtrodden, improving the economic status and raising matters concerning their problems. He also put forward a draft to focus attention on them and finding solutions to the same. The problems of the backward castes continued to be old and difficult to overcome. Their entry into temples was forbidden. They could not draw water from public wells and ponds. Their admission in schools was prohibited. In 1926, he led the Mahad March at the Chowdar Tank at Colaba, near Bombay, to give women the right to draw water from the public tank where they burnt copies of the 'Manusmriti' publicly. This marked the beginning of the anticastric movement. The temple entry movement launched by Dr. Ambedkar in 1930 at Kaleram temple, Nasik was another landmark in the struggle for social justice. In the meantime, Ramsay McDonald announced the 'Communal Award' as a reward for the fight to strike and addressed a large number of meetings and conferences in Bombay Presidency. In 1939, during the Second World War, he called upon Indians to join the Army in large numbers to defeat Nazism, which he said, was another name for Fascism. In 1947, when India became independent, the first Prime Minister Pt. Jawaharlal Nehru, invited Dr. Ambedkar, who had been elected as a Member of the Constituent Assembly from Bengal, to join his Cabinet as a Law Minister. Dr. Ambedkar had differences of opinion with the Government over the Hindu Code Bill, which led to his resignation as Law Minister. The Constituent Assembly entrusted the job of drafting the Constitution to a committee and Dr. Ambedkar was elected as Chairman of this Drafting Committee. While he was busy with drafting the Constitution, India faced Partition. The country saw partition and Mahatma Gandhi was assassinated. In the beginning of 1948, Dr. Ambedkar completed the draft of the Constitution and presented it in the Constituent Assembly. In November 1949, this draft was adopted with very few amendments. Many provisions have been made in the Constitution to ensure social justice for scheduled castes, scheduled tribes and backward classes. Dr. Ambedkar was of the opinion that traditional religious values should be given up and new ideas adopted. He laid special emphasis on dignity, unity, freedom and rights for all citizens as enshrined in the Constitution. Ambedkar advocated democracy in every field: social, economic and political. For him social Justice meant maximum happiness to the maximum number of people. On 24th May, 1956, on the occasion of Buddha Jayanti, he declared in Bombay, that he would adopt Buddhism in October. On October 14, 1956 he embraced Buddhism along with many of his followers. The same year he completed his last writing 'Buddha and His Dharma'. Dr. Ambedkar's patriotism started with the upliftment of the downtrodden and the poor. He fought for their equality and rights. His ideas about partition were not only confined to the abolition of colonialism, but he also wanted freedom for every individual. For him freedom without equality, democracy and equality without freedom could lead to absolute dictatorship. On 8th December, 1956, Baba Saheb Dr. B.R. Ambedkar attained 'Mahaparinirvan'.
