DAIRY EDUCATION IN INDIA

PRESENT STATUS AND FUTURE PROSPECTS

Varinder Pal Singh & Anil Kumar Puniya

The livestock sector is floating for revolution in the developing countries, where major increase in milk production is anticipated in next few decades. Livestock sector contributes about 29.90% of the total gross domestic product from agricultural sector in India. This sector in addition to regular income, provides house hold nutritional security and employment to small and marginal rural households. This regular source of income has a huge impact on minimising risks to income as crop sector is seasonal. It also absorbs the surplus family labour of the farmers and thus helps in earning extra income throughout the year. Moreover, livestock is a security asset to be sold in times of crisis. If we peep inside the livestock sector, dairying is the major enterprise contributing about 2/3rd of the total income from livestock sector. The farmers are intrinsically linked to dairy farming to produce milk and milk products for home consumption and for subsidiary income. Indian dairy sector has evolved from rags to riches. In the pre-independence era, there was scarcity of milk and there was dependence on imports. Owing to development of dairy sector in various phases of operation fluid and de-licensing of dairy industry, India emerged as top milk producing nation. During the year 2015-16, national milk production was recorded at 176.3 million tonnes (20.12 % of world milk production i.e. 876 million tonnes) far ahead of USA (98.6 million tonnes) and China (39 million tonnes) and it has increased from 31.6 million tonnes during 1980-81. Further, the national level per capita milk availability has increased from 128 g/capita/day during 1980-81 to 375 g/capita/day during 2017-18 with Punjab state topping the table with as high as 1120 g (Fig1).

Milk is a highly perishable food commodity. The number of bacteria multiplies exponentially after the milk is received from the animals. Hence, it requires immediate cooling for keeping the bacterial growth under control. The surplus raw milk should be marketed without any delay so as to maintain the quality of milk. Alternately, the raw milk can be converted into different types of value added milk products having elongated shelf life. The processing of raw milk into milk products enhances the value of raw milk by at least 20-25%, which can go a long way in generating additional income and employment opportunities in the country.

The Indian dairy industry comprises of two sectors i.e. organized sector comprising of cooperative, private and government milk plants and un-organized sector comprising of milk vendors, halwais, creameries etc. To the much surprise, the organized sector is still processing less than a quarter of milk production in India, whereas in developed countries this figure is as high as 90%. The states with large proportion of organized processing are Gujarat (48%),

CAREER OPPORTUNITIES IN AGRIBUSINESS MANAGEMENT IN INDIA

PC Meena, Ranjit Kumar & Sanjiv Kumar

Agriculture is considered as the backbone of our economy. Indian agriculture contributes approximately 17.50 per cent of the country’s GDP. It provides large scale employment and fulfills the food and nutritional requirements of the nation. It provides important raw materials for several major industries. However, Indian agriculture faces numerous challenges with a rapidly changing business environment, pace of technological change, and global competitive environment. Since couple of decades, agriculture is moving towards commercial orientation and needs to further transition from supply driven to demand driven. New inputs and new technologies are hitting market everyday. In recent pasts, with the proactive initiatives of the Government of India, several new programmes and schemes has been launched to meet the catrian call by the Honorable Prime Minister of ‘Doubling Farmers’ Income by 2022’. With the rapid urbanisation, demographic changes, and improvement in disposable income, the food basket of the consumers has dramatically changed. Now consumers demand variety of produce round the year and with certain quality. The demand for processed and packaged food products is increasing rapidly, which requires trained manpower to handle the business. Only 14 per cent of total food products are being processed in India, whereas 35 per cent food is wasted during packaging and transportation. Several agri-start ups and agripreneurs have also emerged in the space of service delivery, product and process innovation. Therefore, agri-business management is becoming a popular career choice for the agri-graduates. There is great need to develop the professional agribusiness managers who can, not only fill the management requirements but also prove to be a great support to the farmers.

WHAT IS AGRI-BUSINESS?

Agri-business includes all business enterprises that transact with the farmers and takes the food products and services to the ultimate consumers. The transaction may involve either a product, a commodity or a service and encompasses items such as (a) productive resources e.g. feed, seed, fertilizers equipment, energy, machinery etc. (b) agricultural commodities e.g. food and fibre etc (c) facilitative services e.g. credit, insurance

In a developing country like India, agri-business system with forward and backward linkages consists of four major sectors such as agricultural input, agricultural production, agro-processing and agricultural marketing-distribution. Thus, agri-business is all about how to conduct successful business in the food and agriculture related sectors. Therefore, agri-business management is the application of management principles in agriculture and agri-business sector.

NEED FOR AGRI-BUSINESS EDUCATION

Hon’ble Prime Minister Shri Narendra Modi on 27th June 2018, asked leaders of corporate India to create more jobs by investing in housing, micro-irrigation, battery storage, defence and agriculture sectors.

Prime Minister met 41 business leaders representing a wide spectrum of the Indian economy, in Raj Bhavan in Mumbai and said that the government and the private sector must come together to become partners in progress as economy picks up pace, due to lack of management expertise. Though, most of the State Agricultural Universities (SAUs) are offering post-graduate programs in agriculture business management. There is a need for quality agri-business education, research and capacity building to meet the demand of sunrise sector of agribusiness sector.

Recruitment of 142 Management Trainees (Technical) in SAIL through GATE-2019

SAIL, a Maharatna CPSE, is a major Steelmaker of the Nation with a turnover of Rs. 58,297 crore (FY 2017-18). To augment its manpower strength to meet the growing demand for its products, SAIL is recruiting Management Trainees (Technical) in Engineering/ Technology disciplines from candidates appearing in GATE-2019. These trainees will be imparted on-the-job training and developed in various streams of engineering so as to acquire the requisite technical skills. Besides, they will be considered for further elevation within the cadre as per the performance and merit.

Eligibility

1. Age Limit: Upper age limit is 28 years as on 14.06.2019, i.e. not before 14.06.1991.Upper age relaxation for SC/ST candidates is 5 years and for OBC candidates (non-creamy layer) is 7 years. A candidate who has appeared in GATE-2019 can apply for SAIL MTT 2019 even if他 is not eligible for GATE-2019.

2. Qualification: Degree in Engineering with 65% marks (average of all semesters, irrespective of the weightage given to any particular year by the Institute/University) in relevant discipline as mentioned below. For Management Trainees (Technical) (M.T) in Metallurgical, Electrical, Chemical, Instrumentation and Mining. The candidates who have appeared in a different GATE paper (other than the one to which they are applying) are required to submit the record of the corresponding GATE marks.

3. Minimum Qualification: For Management Trainees in the six engineering disciplines as mentioned above by utilization of GATE-2019 scores.

There's a little bit of SAIL in everybody's life
Dr. Sheetal Kapoor

The moment Class XII results are declared the search for good colleges and Universities by students and parents begins in order to shape their future in academia. It is true for many students who aspire to get admission in DU. Delhi University (DU) is a public central university which offers admission in multiple specializations under various undergraduate (UG) courses (B.A., B.Sc., B.Com, B.Voc) and postgraduate (PG) courses (MA, M.Com, M.Sc., M.Tech) on the basis of qualifying degree merit/Entrance Examination marks. DU, this temple of learning was established in 1922 and is committed to learning and has been a path-setter in moulding teaching and research and attracting eminent scholars from all over the world. It is a dream university, extra co-curricular activities and is a role-model and path-setter for other Universities in the country. It has been a tradition of this institution that it has always attracted the most talented students to come forward and build their careers but it is a dream university in national development.

The University of Delhi began its journey in 1922 with three colleges, two faculties (Arts and Science) and about 750 students. Presently it has grown into one of the largest universities in the world. At present, there are 90 Colleges, 87 departments, 13 Centres, specialising all over the country.

DU Under-Graduate Admissions: Delhi University offers admissions to various undergraduate programmes through merit/entrance through merit/entrance examination under C.B.S.E. or any equivalent examination, with the registration fee for each of the courses, can pursue UG courses in the University.

The registration process for under graduate admission has begun from 30th May, 2019. Since last year, the registration for the merit based and entrance based UG courses has been integrated.

Candidates seeking admission in the undergraduate programmes offered by DU can register online at the centralized UG admission portal. After registration, candidates would need their individual log-IDs and passwords to fill the Delhi University 2019 application form. Candidates can apply in multiple programmes/courses through a single online registration form. No extra fee would be charged to all the students who apply more than one programmes/ courses. Registration for DU admission 2019 will be the centralised one and separate registration for entrance based courses is not required. Thus, aspirants can register for all courses through the DU online admission portal. DU conducts online entrance exam for nine professional UG courses. They are Bachelor of Management Studies (BMS), BA Business Economics, Bachelor of Business Administration, Bachelor of Science in physical Education, health education and exercise sciences, B. Tech in media and communication.

Registration and submission of online forms must be done in online-mandatory. Only through the DU application form, candidates can apply for all the programmes offered by each college under the university, except two colleges i.e., St. Stephen’s College and Jesus & Mary College as they allow their individual application form for UG admissions. Candidates are free to choose as many colleges as they wish to apply. The minimum qualifying marks are set by the universities based on the marks obtained in any recognized institute or a corresponding examination under C.B.S.E. or any other recognized board.

Eligibility: A background in agriculture and allied sectors (dairy, food, agriculture engineering, forestry etc.) is the first step towards entering agri-business management course. Students who have Bachelor’s degree in agriculture or allied sectors and any recognized institute or a university are preferred. Every institution or organization has its own criteria for the admission. Therefore, all the students should visit to the website of the organization of their interests for knowing the admission criteria.

Career Opportunities: Almost all the institutes offering agri-business management course are providing placement assistance. Today, agri-business job opportunities are available in various agri-sector like warehousing, retail form along with the list of required documents/certificates and proceed to the respective college for verification of marksheet/certificates, calculation of cut-off percentage depending on the programme where the applicant wishes to take admission and meets the desired cut-off

Visits expressed are personal.
Various state level agricultural or animal sciences universities along with some national institutes are offering degree level courses in dairy technology i.e. B.Tech (Dairy Technology), M.Sc. (Dairy Science and Technology) and M.B.A (Dairy Management). The objective of dairy technology education is to make available trained human resources to the dairy industry, to educate the milk producers, entrepreneurs and consumers about the quality aspect of milk by imparting short term training in various aspects of milk handling. There is semester system in dairy technology education. The students are taught various related courses for seven semesters and sent to relevant industry for in-plant practical hands on training for complete one semester along with in-plant trainings during summer breaks.

Future prospects: The future target of the national milk production is 254.5 million tonnes by 2021-22 and to bring more than 50% of milk produced under the organized sector for procurement as against the present 25%. To meet these targets and to bring the country to the 10th position in the world with highest milk productivity and highest per capita milk availability, ranks 10th with 10.1% •

To summarize, it is worth mentioning here that dairy education is having a bright future rather than being job seekers. But, there is little knowledge among the new generation regarding the importance of dairy education in India. Graduation in the field of dairy science and technology opens up various opportunities to other skilled and unskilled persons, thus becoming job providers rather than becoming job seekers. However, there is need to improve the quality of education and training in the dairy sector so that the dairy graduates are able to meet the demands of the dairy industry. In this scenario, dairy technology education has a lot of scope. After completing B.Tech (Dairy Technology), the pass outs can get employment in various areas like milk procurement, milk processing, human resources to the dairy industry, to educate the milk producers, entrepreneurs and consumers about the quality aspect of milk by imparting short term training in various aspects of milk handling.

In addition to the institutions mentioned above, a couple of private institutions are coming up to provide dairy technology education viz. Desh Bhagat University, Mandi Gobindgarh; RMIT University, Mandi Gobindgarh; Maharishi Arvind University, Jaipur; Pacific University, Udaipur; National backward Krushi Vidyapeet, Solapur etc. To sum up, it is worth mentioning here that dairy education is having a bright future with plenty of job opportunities available along with option to pursue higher studies here or abroad. The dairy graduates can also come up as entrepreneurs starting their own business in milk processing creating self-employment as well as creating job opportunities to other skilled and un-skilled persons, thus becoming job providers rather than becoming job seekers. But, there is little knowledge among the new entrants after senior secondary level about this stream. At this stage, a major question arises after parents and students: which stream to join after senior secondary level? They are in such a cross road that making decision out of so many options is not easy. With the above background, we hope that the dairy education will certainly enter into their choice list and they can plan to try their luck in getting entry to this stream.

non degradable pollutants. Some pollutants can be degraded or transformed by biological processes, while others are not. These processes are called non-degradable. They cannot be broken down into simpler, harmless substances in nature. E.g. - plastics, polythene, bags, DDT, insecticides, pesticides, mercury, lead, arsenic, etc.

Classification of pollution

The Environmental pollution can be divided into following types:

1. Air pollution
2. Water pollution
3. Noise Pollution
4. Marine pollution
5. Soil Pollution
6. Thermal pollution
7. Nuclear hazards

In this article we will discuss two major types of Environmental pollution, namely, air pollution and water pollution.

Air Pollution

Air pollution is the contamination of the atmosphere by substances present at concentrations above their natural levels and capable of producing adverse effects on humans, other living organisms, and the ecosystem in general.

I. Carbon mono-oxides (CO):

Carbon monoxide (CO) is a colourless, odourless and toxic air pollutant. It forms when the carbon in fuels doesn't completely burn in fuels such as gasoline, natural gas, oil, coal, and wood. It is usually produced by motor vehicles and industry. Carbon monoxide levels in the atmosphere increases during cold weather, because cold temperatures make combustion less complete and traps pollutants close to the ground. Carbon monoxide causes harmful health effects. The air pollutant when inhaled, combines with blood haemoglobin to form carboxyhaemoglobin at a rate 210 times faster than the oxygen forms oxyhaemoglobin, impairing respiration. It reduces the ability of oxygen reaching the brain, heart and other body's organs and tissues. The high levels of carbon monoxide in the atmosphere cause health problems.

II. Hydrocarbons: A hydro carbon is an organic compound consisting of only hydrogen and carbon atoms. Almost all hydrocarbons occur naturally in crude oils, like petroleum and natural gas, that are considered the driving force for modern civilization. Some common hydrocarbons include Methane (CH4), Ethane (C2H6), propane (C3H8), Butane (C4H10), Pentane (C5H12) and Hexane (C6H14). Hydrocarbons pose no risk on their own; however, they undergo a chemical reaction when exposed to sunlight or nitrogen oxides contributing to the greenhouse effect and depletion of the ozone layer. They reduce the ability of the ozone layer to protect the earth's surface from harmful UV rays and increase the risk of respiratory illness in human and animals and also increase cancer rates.

III. Nitrogen oxides: Nitrogen oxides are produced naturally by lightning, and also by microbial processes in soils. However, they are majorly produced in fossil fuel combustion (gasoline and diesel engines) in urban areas, while agricultural practices such as the use of synthetic fertilizers are its main sources in rural areas. Nitrogen oxides can cause permanent damage to the respiratory system.

IV. Particulate matter: Particulate matter, also known as particulate pollution or PM, is a term used for extremely small solid particles and liquid droplets that are suspended in the air. They are made up of a variety of components including nitrates, sulphates, organic chemicals, metals, soil or dust particles. This pollution arises mainly from motor vehicles, wood burning and industry.

V. Sulphur dioxide: Sulphur dioxide is highly reactive gas with very strong odour. Its main source is anthropogenic and is formed by fossil fuel combustion at power plants and other industrial facilities. Natural processes like volcanic eruptions, decomposition and combustion of organic matter release sulphur gases. It contributes to the formation of acid rain, which harms forests and trees.

Sulphur dioxide irritates the lining of the nose, throat and lungs and can cause a variety of diseases, including asthma. It has also been found to exacerbate cardiovascular diseases.

Water Pollution

Water pollution is a form of pollution arising from contamination of water bodies such as lakes, rivers, oceans and so on, with toxic substances or pollutants that get dissolved into the water. Pollution in water bodies can be divided into two types of water sources, water systems and contaminants in water bodies. Greater BOD implies the lower amount of dissolved oxygen in water bodies. Even aquatic life such as fishes. One of the main reasons for treating wastewater prior to its discharge into a water resource is to ensure that it provides a suitable environment for the fish and other aquatic life. BOD is a measure of the amount of oxygen required by microorganisms in the biological process of metabolizing organic matter in water. The BOD is directly proportional to the quantity of the organic matter in water bodies. Greater BOD implies the lower amount of dissolved oxygen in water bodies. Even aquatic life such as fish.
