Economic Size
- The labour laws in India have been relatively stringent and one of the biggest hurdles for the industry particularly for the MSMEs and provide more room for deployment of workforce in the factories. This would result in making business environment more conducive for productivity and growth.
- The Budget has focused on attracting foreign investors to increase capital flows with the easing of the local sourcing norms for FDI in both, Special Retail Brand and 100% Foreign Direct Investment (FDI) permitted for insurance intermediaries. The announcement to meet goods and services needs in the market will be a much-needed boost for the companies and will enhance business sentiments and production possibility frontiers in the economy.
- The labour laws in India have been relatively stringent and one of the biggest hurdles for the industry particularly for the MSMEs and provide more room for deployment of workforce in the factories. This would result in making business environment more conducive for productivity and growth.
- The industry had been propounding for flexibility in labour laws since the economy.

Macro Economic Parameters
- The disinvestment target of the government has been increased to a little over one lakh crore for FY2010 from Rs 90,000 announced in the interim budget. This will help government to boost its revenue and use it in development economy.
- The focus on encouraging PPP in unleashing faster development and completion of projects, rolling stock manufacturing and delivery of passenger freight services in railways will not only propel industrial growth but also provide better service delivery to masses.
- Zero budget farming would help farmers to buy the inputs and other raw material from the market. Zero budget farming helps in reducing the cost of cultivation, enhance soil fertility, prevent environmental damage and all this without the use of money. Zero budget farming has already been implemented and tested in a few states and according to the government, this model is needed to be replicated in other states. The farmer who is able to make sufficient rainfall, avoids using chemical input and does not have to take credit to buy the inputs and other raw material from the market. Zero budget farming would also create the scenario of self-reliance among the farmers, going forward.
- The different schemes to make India a USD 5 trillion dollar economy, through focussed reforms and strategic investments in the most critical areas, such as infrastructure, digital economy, job creation, ease of doing business and kick-starting the virtuous cycle of investments. Overall, the Union Budget 2019-20 is a balanced, pragmatic, welfare inducing budget and also investment is appreciable as it would make NRI investments in India easier. Further, the decision to organise global investor’s meet in the country is investment growth provoking as it would expand the global investor’s investment in the Indian economy.
- MSMEs are the potential growth engine of the Indian economy. The government has very rightly diagnosed the importance of MSMEs in the economy; the announcement of 2% interest subvention for all GST registered MSMEs on fresh or incremental loans and other schemes for MSMEs would strengthen the growth of MSMEs with new possibilities for expansion and deployment of workforce in their respective factories. This reduction was proposed by the industry and various stakeholders and is expected to be welcomed by the companies and will enhance business sentiments and production possibility frontiers in the economy.
- New India where the economy will be in double digit growth trajectory, the manufacturing sector will be globally competitive, the agriculture sector will be sufficient to sustain the rising population and millions of jobs will be created for socio-economic front.
- The farmers’ income will be doubled, taxation system will be simple, ease of doing business will become a reality, and standards of living will improve for the people. The New India will promise every citizen to realize his or her potential and contribute towards self, family and the country. New India will have numerous success stories to tell, demonstrate and sell to the world.

In recent years, the Indian government has taken many initiatives to introduce e-information services like National Knowledge Network (NKN) which is a state of the art multi-gigabit pan-India network for providing a high speed network, a back home for all knowledge related institutions in the country. Initially, the objectives were to provide open resources in terms of repositories and depositories, which were made accessible to the public. Some of the efforts in the direction started as National Digital Repository of IGNOU, Sakshat providing e-content, Shishya for 11th and 12th standards by CBSE board. The idea behind these projects was to make education reachable to many learners. Some of the names that fall in the path are Education and Research Network (ERNET) connecting various education institutions by providing network connectivity. Education Satellite (EDUSAT) a satellite launched for education in India. Consortium for Educational Communication (CEC), use the power of television to act as means of educational knowledge dissemination, Information and Library Network Centre (INFLIBNET) autonomous Inter-University-Centre for connecting university libraries, also it has started several other programs. These all are the initiatives towards open education and education with Information technology still MOOC was out of their reach. There are various notable institutions, both non-profit and commercial, that offer the courses in India with the help of MOOC providers. Few are mentioned below:

NPTEL : National Programme on Technology Enhanced Learning. It is a project funded by MHRD, initiated in 2003.

MooKIT: A lightweight MOOC management system built entirely using open-source technologies by Indian Institute of Kanpur (IITK), in 2004.

JOURNEY OF BANKING IN INDIA

Vijay Prakash Srivastava

Today having a bank branch around is an obvious thing for most of us. Whether we live in a city or a village, we can find a bank branch, where banking services are available at an affordable cost to everyone. But this was not the case till a few decades ago. In our country lot many villages were taken place since we got independence on 15 August 1947. Some changes have been big and some small. All banking was one area which had undergone maximum changes both in terms of reach and the services offered.

19th July this year marked the completion of 50 years of bank nationalisation. This day in 1969, 14 big banks of the country having a huge ownership and control of banks was nationalised by the government to serve better the needs of development of the economy in conformity with national goals. On 15th April 1980 , six more private banks were nationalised.

Banking has an interesting history in India. The history of Banking in Hindostan was the first bank in the country, established in the year 1770. After that the General Bank of India was established in the year 1786 but it failed after 5 years. The East India Company established Bank of Bengal, Bank of Bombay and Bank of Madras in 1809 and 1823 which used to be called Presidency banks. In 1920 all these three banks were consolidated into Imperial Bank of India. Allahabad Bank was the first bank to be established by Indian nationals followed by Punjab National Bank. Both these banks were established in 1835 and 1865 respectively. Five more banks viz. Bank of India, Bank of Baroda, Canara Bank and ICICI bank and Bank of Mysore were established between 1906 and 1913.

In order to organize banking function and activities government introduced Banking Companies Act in 1949 which was later converted to Banking Regulation Act. In 1955 government took the ownership of Imperial Bank of India asking it to offer extensive banking services all over the country.

In the second phase Andhra Bank, Punjab & Sind Bank, Corporation Bank, New Bank of India, Oriental Bank of Commerce and Vijaya Bank were nationalised.

In 1993 New Bank of India merged with Punjab National Bank. All the big private banks were held by large industrial house or the like. As a result wealth and economic power of these banks were exercised by a few and the larger population was being left outside the parameters of banking system. It was also observed that growth of Indian commercial banking was extremely slow and remained restricted to urban areas, thereby hardly anything to do with these banks. The lending policy of the banks was discriminatory. Mostly loans given by them were for large and medium scale industries and already established business firms. There was not enough control to ensure end use of loans and it was not unusual to find banks' money being used for anti-social purposes like hoarding, black marketing and speculation etc. All in the banking system was in a mixture of chaos and unorganized state.

In 1967 the idea of social control of banks was proposed. Social control of banks was proposed to be the middle path between complete ownership of government and status quo. It meant greater representativeness of the country's needs of economic development and the country's needs suitable policies and their effective implementation.

It was expected that with nationalization it would be able to get support in investment earned by banks will come to the government. Government also owned to allocate credit fairly to depositors of money in banks. Adequate credit flow to farming and small scale industries. To ensure development at grassroot level was the reason.

Prior to bank nationalization commercial banks used to make indiscriminate lending. After nationalization in 1980, the banks were asked that a significant portion of bank loan is allocated to priority sector which include agriculture, small scale industries, housing etc. Passage of time the list of priority sector was enlarged to include more activities.

Post nationalization maximum number of bank branches opened at rural and semi urban centres which hitherto were devoid of formal banking setup. Such massive branch expansion was aimed to extend banking services all over the country.

Scheduled commercial banks in India developed banking habits in Common Indian citizens, encouraged them to put their savings in banks and offered them need based finance at reasonable rates. Poor and excluded population of the country found out that they can also approach banks.

Various government schemes were launched through banks. Prominent among these schemes were Integrated Rural Development Programme (IRDP), Self Employment Scheme for Urban Poor(SEUP), Self-employment Scheme for Educated Unemployed Youth (SEEUY), and Committee on Balance. It was talking of early schemes. Of late many more schemes have been added which include Sukanya Samriddhi Yojana, Mudra Yojana etc. www.Jobriya.in Regional Rural Banks: Considering that more than two third of Indian population lived in villages, government of the country felt that another layer of banks to cater specifically to rural area was needed. Thus came the idea of Regional Rural Banks or Gramin Banks. An ordinance was promulgated on 26 September 1975 later to be replaced with Regional Rural Bank Act 1976 with an objective to ensure sufficient institutional credit for agriculture and other rural sector. These banks established mainly to meet the credit requirements of small and marginal farmers, landless labourers, artisans etc. It was expected to be low cost financial intermediaries. RRBS were expected to receive local capital and they were expected to serve rural people better.

Banking reforms: With a view to make Indian banking competitive and in tune with globally accepted practices, many changes were initiated. Initial reforms were related to administrative structure of interest rates, reserve requirements and credit allocation to certain sectors. Except for certain specific classes, interest rates in the banking sector have been deregulated. With the productivity of government banks they were exposed to private banks. Guidelines were issued for entry of private banks in the banking sector. Since 1992, many new private banks were set up. Foreign direct investment in private banking space was allowed to open bank completely subject to conformity with other guidelines.

A number of measures were taken to improve the transparency in banking system and strengthening regulatory standards. Disclosure norms were tightened too. Bank licensing policy was rationalised with enhanced freedom to individual banks in opening and closing their branches.

On all important issues government took the ownership and headed by eminent people. For example Committee on Financial Systems was headed by Shri M. Viswanatham, High Level Committee on Balance. Banking reforms were carried out by Dr. C. Rangarajan.

India has been associated with Regional Rural Bank Supervision. With implementation of Basel II norms, commercial banks in our country have adopted globally accepted standardized approach for credit risk and basic indicator approach for operational risk. Now Reserve Bank of India has proposed to implement Basel III norms by March 2020.

Some changes have given positive impact on the Indian banking sector but there were some challenges. The capital adequacy of Indian banks is comparable to those at international level. Profitability of Indian banks has also improved.

By optimising manpower costs banks could achieve per employee higher productivity.

Technology in banks: The biggest transition Indian banking sector has been is the advent of technology. Moving from hand written to computerized posting machines, banks could successfully adopt Core banking Solution which made anymore, anywhere banking possible. Banks opened new branches and automated with real time output generation. The first automated teller machine (ATM) came into the country in 1987. Now ATMs can be found all across the country and people have got used to it. Passbook printing machines, cash deposit machines, note sorting machines are being widely used. National Payments Corporation of India (NPCI) has made significant contribution in establishing robust payment and settlement system in the country. National Electronic Funds Transfer (NEFT) and Real Time Gross Settlement (RTGS) have simplified money transfer with reduced paper work.

Card culture in the country is increasing day by day and people are making payment through debit and credit cards. Mobile wallets have come as a big relief to many people having come out with their own wallets. Mobile phones have transformed into banking devices on which fund transfer, balance enquiry and transaction alerts have been facilitated. Internet banking has become equally popular. All these technological developments have reduced the need to personally visit banks branches.

More and more people are preferring internet banking for various operations on move.

The present decade is going to prove more revolutionary as far as banking sector is concerned. Blockchain, artificial intelligence and chatbots have been making their way in banks and soon it will not be unusual to find a robot answering your banking queries.

Contribution of Banking Sector: Today Indian economy is among the fastest growing economies in the world. Infrastructure is in a much better shape and consumer spending is on rise. In all these banking sector has made a significant contribution. Financial inclusion was a big challenge for a country of India's size, we've done well in reaching 26% of the rural population, 50 to agriculture, micro, small and medium enterprises (MSMEs), and students (loan for higher education) have improved the access to finance. Exposure to private banks. Payment banks and Small Finance Banks have added reach of banking. India Post Payments Bank is an unique experiment of its kind.

Present state of banking: A massive clean-up exercise was launched to strengthen the balance sheets of banks. With many banks having to recover a large proportion of their non-performing assets. Restrictive measures like prompt corrective action are now being eased and government has done its best in recapitalising the banks to keep them in healthy shape. Even in the latest budget presented on 5th July 2019, a provision of Rs. 70,000 crore has been made to keep the credit flow in government banks.

Challenges before banks: Banks are yet to recover some of their bad loans and have to reorient their efforts in this direction and ensuring that they continue to finance viable and genuine proposals. Equipping their manpower to meet emerging challenges has to be another area of attention. They have to create a balance in growth and stability and financial prudence and learn from their past experiences. Already a new wave of merger between Public Sector Banks has been started with merger of Dena Bank and Vijaya Bank in Bank of Baroda. Banks have to be more vigilant while offering. How to emerge stronger after merger is another challenge affected banks have to face.
