NIPER centres are among the best places to study or to pursue Ph.D in Pharmaceutical sciences. Some of the programmes may be common at these centres while some are exclusive to a particular centre. Eligibility criteria for seeing admission to different branches of Pharmaceutical sciences is not uniform. For example for M.S. Pharm in medicinal chemistry you need to have either B.Pharmacy or M.Sc. in Organic Chemistry. For M.S. Pharmacy in Pharmacology and Toxicology, B.Pharmacy or B.V.Sc. or M.B.B.S. will do. For MBA (Pharma) at NIPER, candidates with B.Pharmacy or B.Tech (Chemical Engg. or equivalent) or M.Sc. (Chemical Life Sciences) are considered eligible.

The Doctoral research programme of NIPER is classified into the following three disciplines- Chemical Sciences which includes departments of i) Medicinal Chemistry ii) Natural Products iii) Pharma conforrnatics iv) Pharmaceutical Technology (Process Chemistry); Biological Sciences consisting departments of i) Pharmacology and Toxicology ii) Biotechnology iii) Pharmacy Practice iv) Pharmaceutical Technology (Biotechnology) and Pharmaceutical sciences which covers departments of i) Pharmaceutical Analysis ii) Pharmaceutics and iii) Medical Devices.

Career avenues

Career opportunities in Pharmaceutical science are spread both in public and private sector. A large number of qualified people find work with drug manufacturers which include bulk manufacturers too. Considering the population size of India, the country itself has a huge demand of drugs. At the same time India is also a big exporter of drugs. Many of the multinational drug companies also operate in India.Private healthcare industry in the country is expanding fast with coming up of new hospitals. Similarly many new centres of All India Institute of Medical Sciences have come up and are expanding. These too have opportunities for students of Pharmacy or Pharmaceutical sciences. Research labs, clinical testing labs, both private and government have opportunities for them. Herbal drug manufacturing in the country has got a boost and this can be one of the promising sectors.

For research stream opportunities exist at research laboratories, institutes like NIPER, big hospitals and vaccine makers etc.

For academically oriented people universities, pharmacy colleges and other institutes have good opportunities as their number is fairly large.

Insurance companies have also the requirement for people from Pharma background.

Management students with MBA Pharm are needed mostly in private sector by drug manufacturers and marketers, 1894

India has certain advantages when it comes to. The country has a big pool of qualified scientists and researchers, investments in the sector are on rise and there is good support to the sector from governments side.

Indian pharmaceutical sector is expected to grow to US$ 100 billion, while medical device market is expected to grow US$ 25 billion by the year 2025. Pharmaceuticals export from India stood at US$ 20.70 billion in the financial year gone by. Pharmaceutical export includes bulk drugs, intermediates, drug formulations, biologicals, herbal products and surgical products. See, if you want to become a part of this growth story?

BRICS SUMMIT: REAFFIRMING COMMITMENT ...

2025. The Summit also approved the Moscow Declaration, which will help in promoting the collective efforts to deal with the menace of terrorism and tackling the economic hardships in the face of pandemic besides pursuing efforts to reform the multilateral institutions.

The Summit commended the BRICS New Development Bank (NDB) for providing financial resources to reduce human, social and economic losses caused by the coronavirus outbreak and to restore economic growth in the BRICS countries: "We underscore timely measures taken by the NDB in order to combat the COVID-19 pandemic and its consequences embodied in the Emergency Assistance Programme aimed to provide up to 10 billion US dollars for Emergency Loans to its member countries.

The Summit said, "We support the NDB membership expansion process based on relevant decisions by the NDB Board of Governors. This will strengthen the NDB’s role as a global development finance institution and further contribute to the mobilization of resources for infrastructure and sustainable development projects in Bank's member states. The process of expansion should be gradual and balanced in terms of geographic representation in its membership as well as supportive of the NDB's goals of attaining the highest possible credit rating and institutional development."

Recalling that the year 2020 marks the 75th anniversary of the founding of the United Nations and the end of Second World War, tributes were paid to contributions made by all BRICS countries, including loss of lives of soldiers and civilians: "We reinforce our commitment to a world of peace, stability and prosperity, mutual respect and equality, and to upholding international law, including the purposes and principles enshrined in the charter of the United Nations as its indispensable cornerstone, and to the central role of United Nations in an international system in which sovereign states cooperate to maintain peace and security, advance sustainable development, ensure the promotion and protection of democracy, human rights and fundamental freedoms for all with the aim to build a brighter shared future for the international community based on mutually beneficial cooperation."

The Declaration also reaffirmed the principles of non-intervention in the internal affairs of states and the resolution of international disputes by peaceful means and in conformity with the principles of justice and international law as well as inadmissibility of the threat or use of force against the territorial integrity or political independence of any state.

Reaffirming the BRICS commitment to multilateralism, the declaration said the five countries will continue to work towards strengthening and reforming international governance so that it is more inclusive, representative, democratic. "We acknowledge that current interconnected international challenges should be addressed by strengthened international cooperation in the interest of both nations and peoples through reinvigorated and reformed multilateral system, including the UN, the WTO, the WHO, the IMF and other international organization."

This is the second time Prime Minister Modi and Chinese President Xi Jinping were on the same virtual platform since the India-China border standoff emerged in the open in May 2020. (Author is an experts on International Affairs, e-mail: sudhaman23@gmail.com)

EN 29/52
Registrar
DEMOCRACY IS PERHAPS one of the most used and abused words in political thinking. Its definitions are myriad and it means different things to different people depending largely on their background, intellectual temperament and level of political consciousness. There is no one definition of democracy. Nonetheless, one thing that democracy implies is the recognition that the ordinary citizen, every individual in society, is endowed with reason and ingenuity and can determine for himself what is best for him. Every adult citizen is capable of governing himself and of managing his affairs the way he deems fit. No one, however good or able, has the right to rule over another person without his or her consent.

In a democracy, sovereignty vests in the people; citizens are their own masters. They are participants in the government of the civic society. They have an inalienable right to rule themselves, or to be ruled in the way they like and by the fellow citizens they choose. They are thus both the rulers and the ruled.

Democratic polity recognizes the equality of all citizens and the ‘one man, one vote’ principle is based on that recognition. All citizens, whether educated or illiterate, experts or technocrats, industrialists or labourers, are equal. They have the same rights. Democratic polity protects the freedom of thought and expression of every man and woman. Every individual citizen, irrespective of 84 Citizens and the Constitution caste, creed, colour of the skin, religion, sex, method of worship, faith, race, etc., is equal in the eyes of law, and has freedom to express his views and in elections to vote without fear or favour as he or she likes.

Democracy also recognises the fact that from time immemorial human beings have been fighting with each other for power or for supremacy of ideas and so on. In earlier times, they fought with bows and arrows; later they fought with bullets and other increasingly dangerous arms.

Democratic polity tries to substitute a more civilised manner of fighting. It is substitution of the methods of discussion and persuasion for methods of armed conflict. The ballot substitutes the bullet; we sit together, we talk and we discuss. We reason to persuade and win each other by force of our conviction, ideas and arguments.

According to the Western scholars, the first democracies were known to have evolved in Europe. The concept of democratic State and of citizenship itself may be said to have taken shape when ethnicity-related, tribal or kinship bonds began to give place to territorial loyalties or the fellowship of those living in a particular area. A fundamental premise of democracy is that it is based on self-rule by a people inhabiting a particular territory.

The Greek word ‘demos’ literally meant ‘the people’ and ‘Kratos’ meant ‘government’ or ‘rule’. Democracy thus means a system of government in which power and authority are vested in the people. In the earliest democracies, the citizens assembled together to decide issues of governance. Thus, people exercised their power directly in deciding matters of State and this kind of polity directly in deciding matters of State and this kind of polity was known as ‘direct democracy’. In Greece, citizens thereby directly in deciding matters of State and this kind of polity were called direct democracy. This system, therefore, became the model of direct democracy; subsequently it was adopted in other countries where the right to vote was extended to all adult citizens.

In a democracy, the people (all the adult citizens) come together to discuss matters of State and arrive at decisions smoothly. Also, matters of legislation and State administration grow more and more complex. All forms of direct democracy, therefore, soon became practically extinct from all over the world except for a few Swiss cantons where even issues like whether price of the bread should be increased by two cents or whether schools should remain closed for half-days or full days on Thursdays, and the like may still get decided by a popular vote.

There, may be a few referenda on major constitutional or international issues in some places, but, by and large, the only issue on which the people at large in different countries vote these days at periodic intervals is selection of their representatives.

The Constitution Day: 26th November

The Constitution Day, 26th November, is observed in India to commemorate the adoption of the Constitution of India. On this day in 1950, the Constitution of India was adopted by the Constituent Assembly of India and was came into force. The Constitution Day is celebrated by organizing various programs across the country to educate people about the significance of the Constitution.

Parliamentary Government is Government by Parliament. Parliament is the supreme representative institution of the citizenry. It embodies their will and remains responsible to them and responsive to their needs and aspirations. Parliament, however does not and cannot itself govern the country. There is, therefore, the Council of Ministers which constitutes the political executive or the Government of the land. The Council of Ministers is drawn from Parliament and remains part of it and constantly answerable to it. Thus, in a parliamentary system, Parliament and Government are not two separate sovereign centers of power. The Government is a part of Parliament. The relationship between the two is that of the part to the whole, of the agent to the principal or of the servant to the master. However, in Britain where the system of parliamentary democracy may be said to have had its birth and evolution, we have a constitutional monarchy while United States which is a Republic works under the Presidential system.

Republic Defined

The concept of republic is of a State in which the public or the people are supreme, there is no privileged class and all public offices including the highest are open to every 87 citizen without any discrimination. There is no hereditary ruler and the head of the State is elected by the people from among themselves for a fixed term. He is usually called the President of the Republic. For Cooley, a republican form of government is "a government by representatives chosen by the people." In the words of Justice Hidayatullah: "A Republic is a State in which the supreme power rests in the final analysis with the people and not with a single individual like a king or the like." Democratic Republic may, therefore, broadly mean a State with an elected head and a government by the representatives of the people. According to Madison in the Federalist:

"(Republic) is a government which derives its powers directly or indirectly from the great body of the people, and is administered by persons holding their offices during pleasure, for a limited period, or during good behaviour."

This volume, includes a special section wherein the President expresses his contemplations on two great souls, Gautam Buddha and Mahatma Gandhi, and the significance of their preachings, especially in the twenty-first century. An ardent believer of Gandhian ideals, the President reposes utmost faith in the moral compass that the Mahatma gifted to humanity to help it navigate out of its ordeals. It became all the more relevant in 2019-20, as the world celebrated the 150th birth anniversary of Mahatma Gandhi.
